

CONDEMNED KILLER STABBED TO DEATH

SENATOR EDWIN F. LADD DIES

NORTH DAKOTA SOLON SUCCUMBS TO SHORT ILLNESS ON MONDAY

Death Takes Place At Baltimore—Became Ill While Motoring

Baltimore, Md., June 22.—Senator Edwin F. Ladd, of North Dakota, died at the Church Home and Infirmary here today after a short illness with a complication of kidney trouble and neuritis. He was 65 years old.

Ladd became ill last Friday at Cleveland, O., while motoring to his home in North Dakota to deliver a number of speeches. He came back to Washington but decided to go to Baltimore to submit to medical treatment.

His condition became serious Saturday evening, but improvement was noted Sunday. There was a decided change for the worse this morning and at 10:20 a. m. the senator died.

The senator's wife and two of his eight children, Milton, 21, and Virginia 17, were at the bedside when he died, together with his secretary, Douglas McArthur, who hurried here from Washington this morning.

Ladd was conscious until a few minutes before the end.

It was announced that Ladd's body would be taken to Washington tomorrow or Wednesday. The widow had not decided today whether interment would be made in North Dakota or at Ladd's old home in Maine.

In the death of Senator Ladd, the third party, stunned by the death last week of its founder and standard bearer, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, has received another stunning blow. Senator Ladd was one of the staunchest supporters of the third party movement and was prominently identified with it from the time of its inception.

During his senatorial career, Ladd was instrumental in obtaining the enactment of important farm relief legislation. He was one of the leading members of the senate committee on agriculture and forestry and was chairman of the senate public lands committee, which conducted the Teapot Dome oil investigation following the resignation of Senator Lenroot, of Wisconsin. Senator Ladd is survived by a widow, Mrs. Ritzpah Sprague Ladd, whom he married at Annapolis, Md., in 1892 and eight children.

Senator Ladd began his career as a chemist. He was born in Sparks, Me., December 13, 1859, the son of John and Rosilla L. Ladd. He received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Maine in 1884 and his LL.D. degree from the same school in 1915.

His marriage to Ritzpah Sprague, of Annapolis, Md., took place August 16, 1892. He was assistant chemist and chief of the New York Experiment Station from 1891 to 1899. He was dean of the school of Chemistry and Pharmacy and professor of Agricultural Experiment Station from 1899 to 1916. He was also state chemist and became president of the same college February 28, 1916. He acted as food commissioner of North Dakota from 1902. He was editor of the North Dakota Farmer for several years, from 1899.

Ladd was a member of the American Chemical Society, Society of Chemical Industry, (London), the Society for the Promotion of Agricultural Science, the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists, past president of the Association for State and National Food and Dairy Departments, member of the Standard Commission of Food Products, for the United States.

He was author of several books, including, "Manual of Analysis," 1898, "Mixed Paints," 1908, and a number of annual reports and bulletins.

HUSBAND SHOTS WIFE AFTER SHE CUTS HIM FOLLOWING ARGUMENT; IS GIVEN FINE

Lewis Overstreet, colored, East Church Street, was fined $50 and costs by Judge E. D. Smith in Police Court Monday morning on a charge of disorderly conduct that police say followed a shooting and cutting scuffle at Overstreet's home at 12:30 o'clock Monday morning.

Patrolman Charles Simms and Ed Craig stopped combatants after Mrs. Overstreet was shot through the hand by her husband and after she had cut Overstreet on the arm and shoulder with a bread knife. Mrs. Overstreet was in bed at her home Monday recovering from the effects of a beating she said Overstreet administered. She will be charged with disorderly conduct later police say. SLEEP WALKER TAKEN FOR BURGLAR SLAIN BY FRIGHTENED MAN

Householder Fires Gun Through Door When Noise Arouses Family

Cincinnati, O., June 22.—George Beckman, 21, walked in his sleep in Covington Ky., early Monday. He was tumbling at the door of Ralph Lohre's residence evidently believing it was his own home, when Mrs. Lohre, who had just quieted her infant, heard the slight noise. The Lohre house had been robbed recently.

"It's burglars again, Ralph," she whispered. Lohre took his revolver, slipped downstairs and fired through the front. Beckman, now awake, fell on the porch, dying a bullet through his heart. He was the son of John Beckman Covington, contractor and worked for his father. The youth known as a somnambulist, was sleeping on a bench in the rear yard of Beckman's home. His subconscious mind impelled him to walk down the street, remove his trousers and shoes and place them on a porch near Lohre's residence. Then he tried to get in the Lohre home.

TRAIN WRECK DEATH LIST REACHES 49

Dover, N. J., June 22.—The death list in the German excursion wreck at the Lackawanna railroad rose to 49 today when Miss Catherine Wilgelm, Chicago, died in the hospital.

Three others are in a critical condition, Mrs. Louise Kaufman and Mrs. Catherine Weise, both of Chicago and John Nieman, Evanston, Ill. Investigations of the wreck, being conducted by the state board of utilities commissioners and the interstate commerce commission had proceeded far enough today where it was said the railroad probably will be required to drain the long hill adjacent to the right of way. Sand washing down this hill on the tracks is blamed for the wreck.

PRESIDENT TO PLEAD FOR GOVERNMENT ECONOMIES

HUNDREDS GATHER TO PAY FINAL TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF SOLON

Wisconsin Does Honor to La Follette As Body Lies In State

Madison, Wis., June 22.—Done with the battles of politics, done with the trials of lives, done with all things earthly Senator Robert Marion LaFollette of Wisconsin, spent the last few brief hours here today among his friends and relatives.

Before he went, hundreds of the home folks who had honored him so highly with power and position and to whom he had dedicated his life, gathered solemnly around his open coffin under the massive dome of the Wisconsin state capitol yesterday to pay a final sorrowing tribute to his memory.

From bank and farm, from mill and yard, from drawing room and kitchen, they came for the brief funeral services that an appreciate commonwealth gives to a leader and illustrious son. They knew no class, no distinction in their honor of grief. There were here senators and representatives, high state officials, men and women of wealth and affluence; side by side with the most ordinary laborer on the farm or in the mill.

For him there were the simplest services, LaFollette had wished it to be thus.

"There is no sorrow in death over a life well-lived," he had said.

The funeral services were set for one o'clock. Through the long morning hours, he lay peacefully in the silken folds of his coffin, placed at the entrance to the governor's suite which had been his own during three terms. As a drape for the coffin was the large American flag which had flown from the masthead of the old battleship Wisconsin. All about were myriads of flowers, high overhead was a wreath of roses and across it a purple ribbon bearing in golden letters the inscription he had coined:

"The will of the people is the law of the land."

The result of his long fight against illness, Senator LaFollette's face in death was drawn and worn and tired. His lips were tightly set.

SENATOR FESS GIVES BACCALAUREATE TO ANTIOCH STUDENTS

Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Yellow Springs, former president of Antioch College, delivered the baccalaureate address to the thirty members of the graduating class of Antioch in the senior vespers service Sunday night. The seniors were attired in cap and gown.

The service was held under a canopy of arched trees. Accompanied by Philip Bassett at the piano, the double quartet of students, furnished music for the occasion. The double quartet is composed of Eleanor Person, Jean Taylor, Betty Moorman, Lucile Corry, Charles Hoffman, Anthony Dypema, William Rammage and Roger Marshall. Arthur E. Morgan, president of Antioch College, in introducing Senator Fess, declared: "It is fitting that Senator Fess should be here at this time, as he has had a longer association with the aims of Antioch than most, and can talk to us out of the past."

Speaking of the associations which cluster for him around the name of Antioch, of which he was president ten years, Senator Fess said in part: "Antioch has been the nursery of new ideas in education. It has not only been the purveyor of ideas already known but also a pioneer. To these have been added the splendid ideas of President Morgan."

"Opportunities today are ten times better than a generation ago. The main thing is to fulfill the meaning of a real man or a real woman part of life. Money takes wings, anything but genuine character is ephemeral. "The greater thing is to do good in the world. This is the chief measure of success."

The proper emphasis of spiritual values of life were stated by Senator Fess, who declared them necessary to success.

DEFENSE RESTS IN JOSHIAH KIRBY TRIAL

Cleveland, O., June 22.—The defense rested its case in the trial of Josiah Kirby, head of the defunct Cleveland Discount Company, about ten o'clock this morning and Special Prosecutor Joseph I. Fagleson immediately opened the argument for the state. Two charges of embezzlement against Kirby have been dismissed by the state and jury will have to consider only the charge of larceny of 4,200 shares of stock.

Radio Hook-up Will Enable Coolidge to Address 20 Million

Washington, June 22.—With a record of having cut expenditures more than two billion dollars since 1921, the administration will make preparations tonight to once more go to bat with the high cost of government.

President Coolidge, with probably twenty million persons with in ear shot, as the result of a radio hookup, will make a plea for expense cutting during the two years beginning July 1.

He will address the semi-annual meeting of the government's business organization, consisting of department chiefs.

A three billion dollar a year government, exclusive of postal operating costs, has been the objective of the administration since the budget system went into effect during the term of the late President Harding.

The government will come close to this mark in the year ending June 30, expenses to date totalling $3,445,000,000. For the new year it is hoped to come a step closer to the objective.

The economy program aimed specifically at tax reduction was stimulated today by information from the treasury that the excess of receipts over expenditures has already passed the $170,000,000 mark. This surplus will be increased considerably in the remaining seven collection days of the year.

The heavy surplus, first estimated at but $67,000,000, has resulted from unexpected collections under the 1924 revenue act.

The collections are within a few million dollars of the estimated $1,660,000,000, with heavy receipts anticipated before June 30.

Receipts from all sources for the year ending June 30, will be approximately $2,675,000,000, officials said. Virtually all owners of radio tube sets east of the Rocky Mountains will be within hearing of the president and Budget Director H. M. Lord, when they talk tonight. The Chesapeake and Ohio Telephone Company, which arranged the hookup, announced the following stations would broadcast the messages:

WCAP, Washington; WEA, New York; WJAR, Providence; WEEI, Boston; WOO, Philadelphia; WSAI, Cincinnati and WOC, Davenport, Ia. An elaborate program by the United States Marine band will add a feature for the radio audience.

Administration leaders believe that the general broadcasting of the talks will inspire the public to exert influence on their congressional representatives to bring about greater economy in government.

A reaction favorable to more economy in state, county and municipal governments, a program backed by the federal government, was likewise anticipated as a reflection of the words of the president.

REMOVAL OF M'COOK FIELD WILL START SOON, IT IS LEARNED

Actual work of construction and re-location of McCook Field, the largest flying field in the United States, at its new site on the 5,000 acre tract of land east of Dayton and almost entirely in Greene County, is expected to begin in ten days under the direction of Col. Edward S. Walton, engineer in the quarter-master's corps.

Col. Walton, who is one of the most capable and prominent engineers in the army, will reach the field about July 1 and will immediately start work of construction.

An appropriation of $500,000 is available from congress to begin preliminary work. This item will be used in establishing such utilities as the laying of streets and roadways, and sewers and foundations for some of the buildings.

When completed, the new field will be the only air service experimental station in the United States and at the same time will combine the engineering division of the army air service which is now at McCook Field.

Work will be rushed along as quickly as congressional appropriations will permit. It is estimated that nearly four years of work will be required to complete the task.

The new field includes 1,500 acres of the present Wright Field, which field may be re-located at Middletown, Pa., and 3,500 acres of contiguous territory.

The site was donated less than two years ago by public spirited citizens of Dayton who wished to retain the field near Dayton when there was talk of larger and more satisfactory quarters, and who raised $450,000 within two days to buy the 5,000 acre tract and make the government a present of it on which to re-locate the field.

Death Cycle That Hovers Over Senate Takes Toll

Washington, June 22.—A strange death cycle, hovering over the senate of the United States for the past eight years, has closed its 1925 visit with the passing of Senator Robert M. LaFollette.

This as the belief today of veteran capitol attaches who have watched eighteen senatorial careers snuffed out prematurely at the prime of their achievements in fateful cycles of three. LaFollette's death, they believe, will spare all other members of the senate for another year because the cycle has been completed for 1925.

A Damoclean sword of superstition that has been removed from over the heads of senators. They, as well as attaches, were of the firm opinion that when one senator died, and a second followed him into the valhalla of statesmen, a third would be sent to join them within the calendar year.

The 1925 cycle began with the death of Medill McCormick, Illinois Republican, on February 25. The second victim claimed was Selden P. Spencer, Republican of Missouri, on April 16. With the Missouriian's passing, a superstitious dread of this strange cycle was born in senatorial breasts. Senators and attaches alike asked each other who would be next.

Their question was answered when "Fighting Bob" was called.

In 1923, Samuel D. Nicholson, Republican of Colorado, the aged Knute Nelson, Republican of Minnesota and William P. Dillingham, Republican of Vermont, joined their comrades in the voiceless debates of the great beyond.

In 1924, the tangled web of fate called three more—Baron Colt, Republican of Rhode Island; Frank B. Brandegee, Republican, of Connecticut; and the noted leader of the irreconcilables, Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican, of Massachusetts.

"It may be only superstition and again, it may only be a strange coincidence," said Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, after Spencer's death, "but you know, whenever two senators die, a third is bound to follow within a year. There seems to be a cycle, and, of course, we senators wonder who will be the third."

Similar comments were expressed at the time by Senators Smoot, Republican of Utah; Dale, Republican of Vermont; McNary, Republican of Oregon; King, Democrat of Utah; Harris,

AMUNDSEN WANTS TO FLY FROM KING'S BAY TO NORWAY IS WORD

Friends Persuading Him Not To Attempt To Return By Plane

Oslo, June 22.—Captain Roald Amundsen wants to fly back from King's Bay to Norway, but his friends will try to persuade him not to take the chance, it was learned today.

The airplanes in which the explorer and his party flew to the polar ice cap, have arrived at King's Bay and are being overhauled. After the severe strain the explorer and his ship have been under, his friends believe it would be a needless risk for him to attempt the flight back.

Amundsen probably will not return to Norway before July 1. While mechanics are going over the surviving airplane of the two in which Amundsen, Lieutenant Lincoln Ellsworth of Ohio and their four companions started the flight, Amundsen is busy writing his account of the polar air voyage.

SEVEN DROWNINGS IN OHIO MARK NEW WEEK OF VIOLENT DEATHS

Two Motorists Victims As Autos Are Driven Into Water

Cleveland, O., June 22.—Seven deaths all attributed to drowning, marked the opening of the new week in Ohio. Two of the seven, however, were caused by auto accidents.

John Gatto, 31, of Wickliffe, was drowned when the auto in which he was riding, plunged into an abandoned stone quarry filled with water. Others in the auto escaped without serious injury.

Hugh Sutton, Berlin Heights merchant, lost his life, when, blinded by the lights of other machines, he drove his car into Sandusky bay.

The drowning accidents included: John Miller, 25 and his wife, 23, in the Portage lakes near Akron.

Allen Ferris, 21, in Lake Erie, near Cleveland.

Miss Beatrice Dusseau, 19, at Toledo.

John Wheeler, 16, at Cincinnati.

FOUR INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Columbus, O., June 22.—Four persons were nursing injuries, three of them in hospitals here as a result of traffic accidents over the week end. Anthonie Sluince, 6, was being treated for head wounds suffered when she was struck by an auto. Walter Cochran was believed severely hurt, after his auto was in collision with another car. He is being treated at Mercy Hospital.

Samuel Knapp was treated for cuts and bruises after his motorcycle collided with an auto. Thomas Evans was nursing head injuries after the fourth traffic mishap.

"HOBO HOME" BURNS IN $10,000 BLAZE

Columbus, O., June 22.—Hoboes and "penny" bootleggers were looking for a new home today following a spectacular three alarm fire which razed a four story abandoned building of the Williams Milling Company, close to the downtown section here.

Damage was estimated at $10,000. Firemen were on guard all night after the blaze was extinguished for fear sparks carried by the breeze had set other fires in nearby lumber yards.

LAME AND HALT OF WORLD WAR WELCOMED BY OMAHA AS DISABLED VETERANS CONVE

Omaha, June 22.—Omaha today extended the hand of welcome to Disabled American Veterans in what was considered one of the most impressive spectacles in the history of the metropolis of Nebraska.

In row after row in the center of the Civic Auditorium sat hundreds of the halt, the lame and the blind of the World War, as delegations from the 25,000 men in the hospitals throughout the country and the thousands more who are being vocationally rehabilitated and released from the handicaps incurred during their national service. Filling the aisles and packing the galleries were the people of the city, who witnessed the fifth annual national convention of the organization of the war's disabled, which has played such a prominent part in the endeavor to solve

BERNARD GRANT DIES FROM WOUNDS GIVEN BY MURDERER "PAL"

Slayer Cheats Rope By Refusing Transfusion of Blood

Chicago, June 22.—Bernard Grant died this morning in the Bridewell Hospital. He "cheated the rope" as he told doctors he would when they worked to save him from the effects of five stab wounds in the heart, neck and cheek, wounds that came from a knife in the hands of his companion in the murder of Patrolman Ralph Souders, during a desperate battle in the exercise room of the county jail Saturday.

Walter Krauser, who killed him, is held in solitary confinement in the jail, with special guards over him for the double purpose of preventing him from committing suicide and preventing companions in jail, whose scorn of him as a "squeaker" led him to the frenzy of the attack and whose threats of death as retribution for the one unforgivable sin of the underworld led him to his final attack.

"I don't want to live," Grant told doctors who worked on him through Sunday and last night. "Why should I get well to let them hang me? It's better for me to die this way than at the end of the hemp."

He refused a blood transfusion. During the early morning hours, he appeared as if he might recover. Then at daybreak there was a relapse.

"If you'd heard the clang of the death trap on Friday, when they hanged Sams, you'd know why I don't want to live," were his last words. He lapsed into unconsciousness, which ended in death.

Krauser is a moaning, frightened wreck of what was once a human being. During the night he cowered in his cell.

"Don't let them put me out in the bull pen with the rest of the prisoners," he pleaded with jail officials.

"They told me I was a murderer, twice a murderer, before I stabbed Grant. They told me I killed Grant by my testimony on the stand. They kept taunting me and telling me the underworld never let a man live who squeaked on a pal. They told me that even if I beat the case on my second trial that I would never live. They had me all crazy. I thought Grant put them up to it. And I guess I thought that if I killed him I would have a better chance."

SUNDAY, LONGEST DAY

The first day of summer, the longest day of the year, was officially ushered in Sunday with continued warm weather and with the mercury hovering about the 85 degree mark all day. Summer began officially at 5:50 o'clock Sunday morning.

Fifteen hours and one minute of bright sunlight was allotted to Xenia Sunday, with Old Sol rising at exactly 5:08 a. m. and setting at 8:09 p. m. Monday the days began to get gradually shorter until on December 21, 1925, the shortest day of the year will have been reached.

ROBBERY SUSPECT PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Wilbur Dunn, 30, colored, Cedarville pleaded not guilty to a charge of burglary and larceny when arraigned before J. E. Jones, justice of the peace, Monday morning. His hearing was set for Wednesday and he was remanded to the County Jail in default of $500 bond.

Dunn was arrested by Deputy Sheriff John Baughn and accused of implication in the theft of between $400 and $500 from the Charles M. Ridge way drug store, South Main Street, Cedarville, in a daylight robbery, Friday. The robbery was committed in the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Ridgway between the hours of 11 a. m. and 4 p. m.

The money stolen had been concealed in a place thought to have been unknown to all but the proprietors, which may aid in solving the robbery, it is believed. No further arrests have been made but the investigation will continue.

SIX PITCHERS FAIL TO STOP CLOTHIERS AND RESERVES LOSE

The Millard Clothiers of Springfield lived up to all the nice things said about them and proved they were too strong for the Reserves by handing them the worst beating they ever received at Washington Park Sunday afternoon. The final score was: Millards 25, Reserves 7.

The game was terrible throughout. The visitors got twenty-three hits off six pitchers and earned twenty-two runs. Cyphers, regular and star slabsman was hit hard and retired after seven and one-third innings of work. A dozen runs and thirteen hits were garnered off him while thirteen runs and ten hits were gotten off Ritter, Early, Leach, Finlay and Cain who tried to pitch but were not successful.

The visitors carried too many guns for the locals and hit the ball to all parts of the field. Of the twenty-three bingles they made, seven were for extra bases. Duffy and Shank were the batting stars. The former had a perfect day, getting four bingles out of four trips to the plate, while Shank was at bat five times and laced out two doubles and two singles. Snyder also hit well and drove out two doubles and a pair of singles out of seven times at the bat. All the members of the Millard team got one or more hits with the exception of Joe, mascot, who batted for Shank in the ninth and was given a walk.

Hickman, who hurled for the winners, displayed nice form and retired the locals in order for the first three rounds. He pitched but seven innings and held the locals to ten hits and four runs. He had a nice fast one and a slow hook for a change of pace which whiffed eleven of the Reserve batters.

Reserves will meet the Hamilton Clarks next Sunday at Washington Park.

Manager Chambliss will sign five new players for this game. Friend, who caught here before will be back behind the plate again while two new infielders, another pitcher and outfielder will be signed and announced later in the week.

FAVOR WASHINGTON TO DEFEAT OTHERS IN ANNUAL REGATTA

BY DAVID J. WALSH
Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 22—Seven varsity crews representing the ultimate in collegiate watermanship, will leave the mark at Crum Elbow, on the upper Hudson, late this afternoon for their three-mile journey to the unofficial championship of the American colleges. All men are created equal, but some become very sour cream.

It will be a seven crew race at the start. It will not be more than a two crew race at the finish, and the University of Washington, the defending champion, will be one of them.

The rest of the field will be made up of Cornell, Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Columbia, charter members of the association, and Wisconsin and the Navy, enjoying with Washington the guest privileges of the occasion. A perfect host is one who panders to the taste of his guests and those officiating today will be far from imperfect in this respect.

From all accounts Pennsylvania and Syracuse will indulge in deathless duel for fourth place with Cornell and Columbia fighting it out for the doubtful honor of finishing sixth in a field of seven. The "guest crews," in brief, are figured to row one-two-three.

Washington and Yale, a crew using the Washington methods of a Washington product, Ed Leader, have dominated the rowing situation, East and West, for the last three years. A continuance of this domination is looked for today leaving the balance of power again with the West.

The Coast entry won the race in 1923 and 1924 and finished second to the Navy in 1922. The latter is the only eight that is thought to have a chance with the Westerner this afternoon.

The Middie have beaten everything except Yale among the Eastern crews this season and seem to have a fast, powerful eight. They will need a lot of beating in the last mile but, unfortunately, Washington is only beginning to row at that point. The Westerners are at odds on choice to win.

Wisconsin has been doped to finish third, in spite of loud laments from the Badger camp. It was good enough, however, to chase a very fine Washington eight right down to the line last year and with nothing in particular to be among the Eastern entries, seems destined for a position not worse than third.

The Middie have beaten everything except Yale among the Eastern crews this season and seem to have a fast, powerful eight. They will need a lot of beating in the last mile but, unfortunately, Washington is only beginning to row at that point. The Westerners are at odds on choice to win.

Wisconsin has been doped to finish third, in spite of loud laments from the Badger camp. It was good enough, however, to chase a very fine Washington eight right down to the line last year and with nothing in particular to be among the Eastern entries, seems destined for a position not worse than third.

Clears Complexion

"Oh! how clear and beautiful your complexion is today, my dear!"

THERE is a certain joy—a certain pride—in knowing you are admired, whether it be from father, brother, husband or sweetheart! And back of that joy is the satisfaction of knowing all is well.

Men are fascinated by the charms of beauty. Women gaze with envy, secretly jealous, perhaps, wondering—hoping—praying for that attractiveness which is not theirs. But why the wondering—the hoping—the praying for that craved for attractiveness—that clear skin—that beauty. A clear skin—is the barometer of one's condition. A healthy skin radiates beauty. Pure, clean blood means a clear skin.

ENGILMAN-BRISK NUPITALS SUNDAY

Miss Rose Engilman, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Engilman was united in marriage with Mr. Jack Brisk, Dayton, with one of the most elaborate nuptial ceremonies ever performed in the city, at the home of the bride's parents, West Main Street, Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

Seventy-five guests were received for the ceremony. The Engilman home was a scene of floral beauty, each room converted into a bower of greenery and flowers.

Preceding the ceremony, the Misses Leah and Henrietta Gleiwitz, Dayton, gave a violin and piano program their numbers including "O Promise Me," "I Love You Truly," and "At Dawning," the instruments serving as the accompaniment for the vocal solos of Miss Leah. They blended into the wedding march from Lohengrin, which marked the entrance of the bride.

The runway to the altar was made of white linen, lined from the staircase to the altar with huge white baskets of pink snapdragons, gladioli and gypsophylla.

The altar was arranged to resemble a pergola, in white covered with palms, ferns and various greenery. A satin canopy in keeping with the custom of the ceremony, covered the altar.

Baskets of the same flowers were used over the entire house, combined with potted plants.

The procession was led by the ringbearer, little Miss Melba Ruth Sacks, Dayton. She wore a frock of robin's egg blue chiffon. The rings were concealed in a basket of flowers.

The bridesmaids were Miss Sarah Lee Engilman, sister of the bride and Miss Helen Shane, Warsaw, Ind., sorority sister of the bride.

Miss Engilman wore a frock of turquoise blue georgette over peach taffeta. Miss Shane's dress was fashioned of georgette in deep pink over a more delicate shaded foundation of satin. Both frocks were made along the same girlish lines with tight-fitting bodices, and the skirt foundation combined with lace and clusters of satin flowers. Both wore silver slippers and nude hose and carried trailing bouquets of gypsophylla and Liberty roses.

Miss Florence Engilman, another sister of the bride, walked next, as maid of honor. Her gown was of pea green georgette with a huge corsage rose with long silver stem. Her bouquet was the same as that of the bridesmaids.

The bride was met at the foot of the staircase by her father, who gave her in marriage. Tall standards of pink roses were placed at the spot, marking the beginning of the runway, where baskets of pink bloom were intertwined with pink ribbons.

The bride's gown was fashioned of ivory satin and Duchesse lace. The bodice was made simply, the bouffant skirt being formed of petal tiers of the satin, and lengthened with two flounces of lace. The neck finished with a touch of lace, which also formed the cap sleeves, and a single white rose was placed at the corsage.

Her veil of tulle was caught, cap-fashion with a coronet of orange blossoms and fell to form a train. White satin slippers were buckled with lace and orange blossoms.

Her bouquet was of white angelus roses, with an overdrap of valley lilies and gypsophylla, with a shower of valley lilies and Irish Point lace. Her only jewelry was a strand of opera pearls, the bridal gift of the bridegroom.

The bride and her attendants were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Max Frankel, Dayton, and the two officiating rabbis.

The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Samuel Mayerburg of Ben Yusef Synagogue and Rabbi S. Burick, of Beth Abraham Synagogue, both of Dayton. The double ring service was used, the ring placed on the bride's finger belonging to her grandfather, and used in the ceremony performed in Europe more than a half-century ago.

A five-course dinner was served after the service. Covers for twelve were laid at the bride's table, including: Mr. and Mrs. Brisk, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Engilman, Mrs. A. E. Brisk, Dayton, the bridegroom's mother, Rabbi and Mrs. Mayerburg, Rabbi Burick, the Misses Florence and Sarah Lee Engilman, Helen Shane and Mr. Max Frankel.

Appointments were in pink and white, the bride's table being centered with an immense wedding cake, which was cut by Mrs. Brisk. Corsages were placed at each woman's cover, attached to the wedding cake with pink streamers. Quartet tables seated the other guests about the rooms, centered with plaques of gypsophylla and sweet peas. Music during dinner was furnished by the Misses Gleiwitz.

From 8 o'clock in the evening one hundred and fifty guests were received. The entire guest list was composed in the majority of out-of-town guests. Music was furnished during the reception by Perrine's orchestra of Dayton and dancing was enjoyed.

Two punch tables were popular during the evening, and held plaques of snapdragons and gypsophylla.

Mrs. Engilman received in a gown of Coolidge grey chiffon, over salmon satin, with lace panels. She wore a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Brisk, mother of the bridegroom, wore a handsome gown in black, heavily beaded and embroidered.

Mr. and Mrs. Brisk left late Sunday night by motor on an extended trip, their destination not being divulged. Mrs. Brisk's traveling outfit was an ensemble suit of ashes of roses flannel, appliqued in navy blue, with a close-fitting hat of dark blue. On their return they will reside with relatives until the completion of their home on Vista Road, Dayton. Before leaving, Mrs. Brisk presented the flowers of her bouquet, of two parts, to her mother and Mrs. Brisk, Sr.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were silk umbrellas and a pearl bracelet to the ring bearer. Many handsome wedding gifts were received.

ceived by the couple from relatives and friends.

A wedding supper followed the ceremony at the bride's home near Bowersville. The main table was centered with pink and white roses, with a white wedding bell suspended from the chandelier. MODISH MITZI—Mitzi Has Important Business In Town

By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi has ever so many important affairs to attend to in town. Why else should she leave the country even for a day? Her bangkok hat, her flat purse, her cape wrap of silk crepe are all admirably chosen for any venture.

It seems that Mitzi's first important duty is to buy an umbrella—one of the new folding kind that will fit in a suitcase. Although the saleswoman is of the opinion that "it ain't goin' rain no more," Mitzi buys a purple one.

Another important duty seems to be the buying of summer jewelry. Obviously winter jewelry is too heavy for warm weather so Mitzi chooses these small rainbow colored beads for bracelet and necklace, worn a dozen strands at a time.

And just as a gay new touch to summer costume, there is this ruff and scarf of shaded chiffon fastened with ribbon rosettes and a cherry colored bow of ribbon with streamers for the shoulder of a dance frock. Serious business!

After a short wedding trip they will reside in New Antioch.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Connor and Mr. and Mrs. Bushnell Turner motored to St. Mary's Lake, for the week end.

LIFE SAVING EXPERT OF AMERICAN RED CROSS GIVES SWIMMING POINTS

LESSON NO. 7
RESTORING TO CONSCIOUSNESS
By COMMODORE W. E. LONGFELLOW.

Life Saving Expert, American National Red Cross.

Drowning is a form of asphyxiation. The submerged person, being unable to exhale and take in fresh oxygen, is filled with dangerous gas. The inexperienced bather is gagged when a few drops of water gets into the windpipe. The epiglottis—the little trap door muscle in the throat—has a spasm, and contracts, preventing the victim from exhaling, so that no fresh air is taken in. The heart keeps on pumping unpurified blood and the impure air in the lungs through the system.

The carbon-dioxide gas in the lungs causes poisoning, and the heart slows down so that no pulse is found even with a stethoscope. Little or no water gets into the lungs even though the stomach is filled. The treatment for drowning is the same as for electrocution, smoke suffocation and asphyxiation.

LAY FACE DOWNWARD
The prone pressure method has restored persons after hours of work even though they had been under water as much as half an hour. Take the victim from the water. Lay him on the ground or floor in an airy place, face downward, with arms pulled higher than the level of the shoulders. Bend one of the person's forearms so that the mouth and nose rest on the back of the hand.

Quickly kneel astride the knees of the patient on both knees. This position gives you the best vantage point from which to watch the person's face.

Slide your hands down from the shoulders to the soft place at the waist line at the base of the floating ribs. Let your hands rest over the floating ribs with the butts of the thumbs four to six inches apart.

Then with your elbows stiff sway your whole body forward from the knees as fulcrum, so that the weight rests upon the lower ribs. KEEP VICTIM WARM
At the moment of highest pressure upon the patient snap your hands to sides and sit back on your heels. That gives the person a big breath artificially.

To allow the proper time for breathing as you press repeat the words: "Out goes the bad air!" and as you rest say: "In comes the good."

This method of pressure and release repeated 12 to 15 times a minute gives more air to the patient's lungs than natural breathing.

Start at once! Don't give up!

Keep the patient warm while you work. Use blankets, hot water bottles, or heated bricks near the body of the patient. Ammonia under the nostrils occasionally will act on the heart. Liquid stimulants should not be given until the person can swallow, and then only in spoonful doses.

Use what you have to improve the condition of a suffocated person until the doctor arrives. Do not wait for anything before starting. Seconds mean lives.

OLD TIMERS MOURN PASSING OF HOTEL LANDMARK OF WEST

Lawrence, Kan., June 1—When the members of the Chamber of Commerce gathered here recently to begin the razing of the Eldridge Hotel, landmark in this little university town since 1856, old timers stood back and contented themselves with turning back the pages of history and reminiscences.

The old structure is to be replaced with a modern hotel. The new building to occupy the same site Lawrence has seen some stirring times, and the old hotel has been the seat of many of them.

The first hotel was started in 1855, at a time when covered wagons were weaving their way across the prairie to the gold fields of the West.

The Emigrant Aid Society of Boston was responsible for the first hostelry. When completed it was of three stories, and one of the finest in the State. It was built for the use of Free Staters, and was known as the Free State House. It was designed as a temporary home for Free Staters, and to induce them to settle in Kansas and keep the State from pro-slavery people.

BURNED DOWN
But the new hotel was not to endure for long. A Grand Jury, decidedly pro-slavery in ideas, was in session. They decided the hotel was a menace to the cause of slavery and even looked upon it as a possible fort for the use of Free Staters. Accordingly they ordered it burned down, and on the evening of May 21, 1856, a little over a month after its completion, there remained only smoldering ruins.

A year later Colonel S. W. Eldridge, a Free Stater, and a man of wealth, decided to erect another hotel on the old site. It was four stories high, and accounts of that time describe its furnishings as extravagant and luxurious.

BORDER RAID
This building stood until August 21, 1863, that memorable day when Quantrill and his band of border men swept down upon the little town to burn and pillage.

The townsfolk were taken by surprise, and when the raiders had left, they found the hotel a mass of smoking ruins. Frank Yes, laundry operator, 2 West Market Street, denies a report made public last week that he had closed his place of business and left Xenia.

Yes, and when the raiders had left, they found the hotel a mass of smoking ruins. Frank Yes, laundry operator, 2 West Market Street, denies a report made public last week that he had closed his place of business and left Xenia.

Yes was said to have left Xenia after complaining to police that he had received anonymous letters containing threats. He now says the report was false and that he has not been absent from his laundry but is still operating it and is now open for business. He denies he contemplated leaving Xenia.

HARRY THAW.

HARRY THAW, who has been more or less in the public eye since the slaying of Sanford White, has at last rebelled against the publicity given him.

Thaw says he realized he must stand for considerable attention from a curious public and rather approves the courteous way the general public has treated his return to old scenes on Broadway, but that he can not stand the "hounding and pounding" of the press.

If Thaw but realizes it, he is still paying for the sensational slaying of the architect, White. If he but knew it, the long years he spent in an insane asylum can not wipe out the memory of a crime of such public interest.

Now, though he has evidently satisfied the law, he must still be known to the public as the slayer of Sanford White. He must still at all times be marked as a public figure, subject to the gazing of the public.

In other words, Thaw is and perhaps, always will be, good news copy. The public picks its idols from strange sources and perhaps there is the element of idolatry in the interest the public feels for the eccentric rich man who chose a public place for his killing. The press may be "hounding and pounding" at Harry Thaw but it is doing no more than attempting to satisfy the public's demand for information about him. If his conscience has been numbed by his years in confinement he will still find that unwelcome publicity will take its place in keeping him from forgetting the shooting that threw him in the public eye.

EDUCATION

WHILE hundreds of young men and women are being graduated from high schools and colleges during this month of June, it is interesting to recall that this seeking of higher knowledge on the part of both sexes is a comparatively recent condition.

Investigation of the graduating rosters in high schools in recent years will show that in the last ten years, the number to receive diplomas has increased 100 per cent or nearly so.

This condition, prevailing both in cities and rural communities, indicates increasing recognition in the advantages that higher education gives the youth to prepare him for his future career.

Only a few years ago the policy of withdrawing the boy from school at the completion of the eighth grade in order to permit him to start to work, was the rule. Educators found that their biggest problem in keeping the child in school was in bridging the gap between the eighth grade and the high school.

In many communities the institution of the junior high school has accomplished this purpose. It gives the pupil the advantage of departmentalized instruction and increases interest in school work for the student whose interest is in danger of being submerged in a desire to be rid of books and on the road to earning his own way.

The demand for skilled training in practically all lines of endeavor has also served as a lesson to the youth who would give up his studies too soon. As modern machinery has increased production and efficiency and reduced expenses so it has been found that the capably trained man or woman offers better advantages and thus wins better opportunities in this workaday world.

Thus the youth who must drop out of school now at the completion of eight grades is not only unfortunate and decidedly handicapped but will find that his erstwhile companions make faster strides and achieve more once they have completed their schooling.

THE MOTHERS OF THE MINISTERS

The mothers of the ministers, how happy they must be. For they have realized the dream my mother held for me! They have the joy they hoped for, and the good for which they've prayed. And the wish that every mother of a baby boy has made.

I never see an acrobat go tumbling through the air. But what I think some mother's little minister is there; When Ty Cobb hits a homer and the crowd applauds the "peach," I wonder if his mother wouldn't rather hear him preach.

Above my little cradle in the days of long ago A great cathedral hovered and the bells swung to and fro. And every Sunday mother heard the chimes and seemed to see The worshippers assembling there to listen unto me.

But, oh, I took to writing, for I was a wilful lad. And the minister she dreamed of, was a joy she never had. For my brothers took to business and I choose to serve the Press.

And I robbed my little mother of her dream of happiness.

Yet what if every mother had her fondest dream come true. And every mother's son should do the work she'd have him do; The world would teem with ministers, there'd be no many here You couldn't get a plumber when the faucet's out of gear.

Chili con Carne: Buy two pounds of beef (ground as for Hamburg Steak). Also buy two thick slices of salt pork. Cut the pork up with a sharp knife and fry it to a crisp in a large saucepan; then remove the solid part left and put in the ground beef. Stir meat till the grease is well blended with it, and let cook over moderate heat about 20 minutes, stirring often. Add one cupful of sliced raw (peeled) onions and let continue to fry mildly for five minutes longer. Now add three cups of boiling water, cover the pot, and let simmer one hour, stirring now and then to prevent sticking on the bottom. Thicken with one tablespoon of flour mixed to a paste with a little cold water. Season to suit taste with Chili powder if you have it—or a little piece of a small red hot pepper finely minced. Serve hot.

Rice O'Brien: Cut enough ripe tomatoes small to fill a pint measure, then heat. To the hot tomatoes add one cup of cooked rice (either white or brown) one cup of tender chopped celery, one half cup of minced green sweet peppers (no seeds) 2 tablespoons of chopped olives (either stuffed or unuffed)—three tablespoons of minced raw onions, one teaspoon of salt, and a dash of paprika. Stir well together, cover the saucepan, and let the mixture simmer gently for one hour. Serve hot.

Marshmallow Cake: Cream together one heaping tablespoons of butter and one and one half cups of sugar. Add two beaten unseparated eggs, and beat the batter till light. Now add one cup of sweet milk which you have previously cooked with two squares of unsweetened chocolate till thick, and then cooled. Also add two cups of bread flour sifted with one and one half teaspoons of baking powder. Flavor with one teaspoon of vanilla and bake either 40 minutes in loaf form in a moderate oven or about 30 minutes in layer form in a quicker oven. Frost with the following:

Marshmallow icing: Boil together one cup of sugar and one fourth cup of water till it "threads." At the same time, melt one fourth of a pound of marshmallows over hot water. Now add the melted marshmallows to the hot sirup (which has spun a thread) and turn the mixture over a stiffly-whipped egg white. Add one teaspoon of vanilla. Beat till the right consistency to spread.

RETALIATION

It has always seemed a strange thing to me that human nature contains so many unwholesome characteristics.

I have never been able to understand, for instance, why a person so delights in retaliation.

Why is it that when someone hurts you, you want to hurt back in return? It would seem that when a hurt is received that it should be replaced only by some kindness to show how big the recipient of the hurt can be.

Happily there are many in this world who use this latter method and who grow in character worth every time.

The great quest of life is for happiness. And the only thing that is able to beget this is happiness itself. Money makes money. So does kindness bring kindness.

There is nothing to be gained by "getting back" at someone who has injured you. The more you try to do it, the more unhappy you become and the more you shrink in soul.

The essence of war is retaliation. Whoever heard of a happy war?

There is only one kind of thinking that is constructive and that is thinking that is free from poison. When you think in terms of co-operation with the forces that build your physical health you are laying the foundation for a healthy spiritual growth.

Those things which make you happy are usually the things that make others happy. Distribute them.

If you drink in beauty wherever you find it you cannot help but radiate it. And after all, it's the atmosphere that you carry about you that you finally feel as the atmosphere of the world and life in general.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Watkins, Mr. R. O. Watkins and children, Mrs. Clara Watkins Smith of Longview, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Hardeen and Mr. Alfred Leach enjoyed a delightful motor trip to Hamilton, O., Sunday, the guests of relatives.

Mr. William Tibbs, chemist and Mr. Marco Killings, pharmacist, both of Chicago, motored to Xenia to attend the Watkins-Hardeen nuptials. They remained a few days, returning Thursday evening after Wilberforce commencement.

Tuesday afternoon, June 16th between the hours of 1:30 and 5:00 the Watkins-Hardeen wedding ceremonies occurred. Promptly at 1:30 Mrs. William O. Stokes, of Dayton, O., sang several appropriate selections including "O Promise Me", "At Dawning", and "I Love You Truly." At 1:45 Miss Alberta Mayo of Wilberforce university played softly Lohengrin's wedding march and the bridal party entered. Little Miss Margaret Marie and Pauline, niece of the bride, were flower girls. Robert Jr., was ring bearer. Mrs. Clara Smith, sister of the bride acted as matron of honor. Mr. Marco Killings of Chicago was best man. The bride entered on the arm of her father. She was dressed in a simple georgette gown, with a veil draped with orange blossoms. The bridal party stood under an arch of roses and ferns. Across the arch in letters of gold was the Latin inscription. Amor Omnia Vincit. The Rev. P. A. Nichols, the former pastor of the bride now of Toledo, officiated. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held until 5 o'clock. There were quite a few out of town guests from Wilberforce, Springfield, Ohio, Gary, Ind.; Columbus, Ohio.; Dayton, Hamilton and Chicago.

LAME AND HALT WAR VETERANS WELCOMED AT OMAHA MEETING

former service organizations, it has the most serious annual convalescence due to the fact that the purpose of the federation is the attempt to alleviate the suffering of its members. But the opening session was an event which the delegations from every section reason to be proud of their scars, for their praise was sung.

Regretting that he was unable to attend, President Coolidge sent a message, in the course of which he said:

"The organization of the Disabled American Veterans occupies a highly respected position with the authorities at Washington. The endeavor which you have so effectively put forth to help solve the problems of those who suffered most severely by reason of the war, is a source of great encouragement to those who are directly responsible for this task. Please communicate to your comrades the assurance of my deep and continuing interest in their welfare. I wish them to be assured that we are endeavoring to the utmost of our ability to fulfill the obligation of the nation for whom the battle still endures."

Veterans of all ages—Grand Army of the Republic, Confederate Veterans, Spanish War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Military Order of the World War and American Legion—each had a representative present to pay high tribute to the Disabled American Veterans. What was looked upon as particularly significant was that for the first time the Legion sent its national commander to personally extend greetings—General James A. Drain stirring the great crowd with his praise of the men who constitute the membership of the Disabled American Veterans.

REMEMBER DEAD

But the most thunderous ovation of the day came as Commander Irwin drew together a grizzled member of the G. A. R., in blue, and a Confederate veteran, in gray, who embraced, while the military band played the strains of the Battle Hymn of the Republic and "Dixie."

One of the constitutional requirements of the Disabled American Veterans is that tribute be paid to the departed comrades during the national convention and the representatives of the association have been engaged half way around the world not only honoring the American dead, but the dead of the Allies. At the shrill notes of a bugler's "Attention!" the throng in the auditorium stood in silent reverence, and simultaneously a detail of the District of Columbia Department of the Disabled American Veterans placed a wreath upon the tomb of the American Unknown at Arlington, while the American Military Attaches overseas deposited Disabled American Veterans' floral offerings upon the cenotaphs and tombs of the French Unknown at Paris, the Belgian Unknown at Brussels, the British Unknown at London and the Italian Unknown at Rome.

The period of silence was broken by Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink singing "Taps," followed by "The Star Spangled Banner," the military song and the National Anthem being carried by radio to the bedside of wounded men in the hospitals.

Upon the part of the State, Governor McMillen and, for the city, Mayor Dahlman extended greetings, and the replies were by the national officers of the disabled men's union. Cablegrams, telegrams and letters were read from the war-time commanders of the allied nations, as well as from Colonel Dwight Davis, Acting Secretary of War; General Pershing, Secretary Wilbur, of the Navy; General John L. Hines, Chief of Staff of the Army, and Admiral Eberle, Naval Chief of Operations, and General John A. Lejeune, Commandant of the Marine Corps.

This afternoon and evening the visiting delegates will enjoy an extensive program of entertainment arranged by the citizens of Omaha.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD EMPLOYEES AND FAMILIES PICNIC HERE; 1,000 PRESENT

Approximately 1,000 former and present employees of the Cincinnati Division, Pennsylvania Railroad and their families, attended the annual divisional picnic-outing held at the Greene County Fairgrounds Saturday. This is the first time the picnic has been held here.

The outing was given under the auspices of the Veteran Employees' Association, Women's Aid, Athletic Association and Railroad Club.

A special train for the accommodation of those attending on the Zanesville branch arrived in Xenia Saturday morning.

Accommodations were also provided for those from Cincinnati and intermediate points, Columbus, New Paris, Springfield, and Lebanon. The picnic was voted one of the most successful ever given by the division while the attendance was up to the average. The picnic was held at Xenia this year because of the easy transportation facilities.

Among the prominent officials of the division who attended the outing were R. C. Barnard, Cincinnati, division superintendent; Frank C. Davis, Cincinnati, division train master; W. C. Raedel, Cincinnati, master mechanic; R. C. Sponsella, Cincinnati, road foreman of engines, and Captain J. I. Cosby, Cincinnati, head of the division police. Numerous assistant trainmasters, road foremen of engines and master mechanics also attended.

I. W. Goer, Chicago, assistant general manager of the Western Division combining the Southwestern and Northwestern Divisions, could not be present at the picnic as first announced. T. A. Pendry, Cincinnati, freight agent at the C. L. and N. depot there, was elected president of the Veteran Employees' Association at the annual meeting of the organization held in the morning, succeeding S. L. Mider, retired trainmaster, Cincinnati, who has held the position for the past three years. Practically all remaining officers of the organization were re-elected for another year.

The association is composed of employees who have been in the service of the company for twenty years or more. The organization has a membership of 700 in this division which represents the employees and officials of all departments. The association holds annual meetings for the purpose of allowing old employees to "get together" for a social day and renew old acquaintances. Ninety-two members are on the retired list.

Following the annual veterans' meeting an entertainment, consisting of musical and specialty numbers was provided by the Women's Aid. Mrs. William C. Raedel was chairman of the entertainment committee.

The entertainment opened with a toe dance given by Miss Helen O'Dea, accompanied by Miss McKee at the piano. Miss Eleanor McDonnell sang a solo accompanied by Miss Margaret Kampman at the piano. A reading, "At the Movies," was given by Mrs. J. C. Deham. The next number on the program was a Spanish dance given by Miss Antonette Crimella and Miss Lillian Sturn.

The program was continued with a reading, entitled "One Legged Goose," by Miss Janet Shaw. Little Miss Charlotte Ryan gave an interpretation of "Turkey in the Straw" with Mrs. R. E. Ryan at the piano. J. J. Cosby sang a bass solo. A recitation entitled "Dolly's Bazaar," was given by Miss Antonette Crimella. The program was concluded with a California dance given by the Misses Crimella and Sturn.

A picnic dinner was enjoyed at 11:45 a.m. Dancing was provided at the exhibit hall at various hours during the day, music being furnished by Bill Maro's Orchestra. The baseball game between the married men and single men was called off because of an unsuitable diamond.

Athletic events consisting of dashes for boys and girls, men and women, and two novelty races were held on the race track in the afternoon. Prizes were awarded the winners and runners-up in each race as follows:

50-yard dash, (boys under 14):—First, Bernard Berens, Lancaster; second, John Pirrung, Lester Road, Cincinnati.

50-yard dash, (girls under 14):—First, Betty Cosby, Terrace Park, Ohio.

Inroads of graduation this year will make it necessary for the coach to train considerable new material, in which an early start will be beneficial.

Coach Victor Kolb, Columbus new director of athletics at Central High School has issued a call for backfield and center candidates for next fall's football team, to meet with him at Central High at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Coach Kolb has just arrived in Xenia and will spend the summer here, as life guard at the Wilson swimming pool. He graduated last week from Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, where he earned an athletic reputation under the Garuhier school of training that indicates he will put Central High teams back in the win column this fall.

The new mentor will hold regular sessions with his backs and center candidates during the summer to gain headway on the task he will assume with the entire squad when school opens. He also hopes to inaugurate a training camp during the latter part of the summer for all candidates, so that the prospective athletes may imbibe fundamentals under his direction while also enjoying camp life.

Inroads of graduation this year will make it necessary for the coach to train considerable new material, in which an early start will be beneficial.

MICHAEL'S MARRIAGE

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER LXXVI

Both felt much better the next morning, their weary nerves convalescent after twelve solid hours of sleep.

"Dear, don't go any place but the bank and then come right straight home," Lilah asked, over the breakfast table.

"Very well, dear."

"And, Michael," she said, leaving her chair and sitting down on the arm of his. "Let's not have any guests for a while. I want only you for company. We'll just not announce our return officially for a few days. I don't think anybody will be offended."

"According to the wedding announcements, we're supposed to be at home now."

"That doesn't matter. No one is going to try to break in until we let them know that we're back."

He devoted himself to the morning newspaper, glancing first at the headlines, then turning to the sport page.

"How do you like my toast?"

"The paper came down."

"Oh! Did you make this toast? I thought it tasted much better than usual." He helped himself to another slice, although there was already a half slice on his plate.

His eyes wandered back to the newspaper.

"I like the idea of preparing most of the breakfast at the table, don't you? I mean, I like a toaster, and a griddle and an electric coffee pot on the table."

"Michael, you're not listening to what I'm saying."

"Why, dear! I am!"

"Not that what I was saying was important, but I think you owe me the courtesy."

"Why, of course, dear! Please excuse me, if I seemed inattentive. I really was listening to what you were saying. I like griddle cakes, too."

She merely smiled slightly.

She forgot the incident after

Michael had gone, in her busy-ness. After changing from negligee into a beruffled organdy frock, she endeavored to "help" Sally Warbe by displaying a deep interest in the marketing details; then she toured the house completely, making mental notes on the arrangement of the furnishings, with an idea of changing them to suit herself. She was determined that this should really be her house, and that she would impress upon it her own individuality. All of the pent-up emotions of years welled up in her. At last she was her own mistress, and could remove any picture that offended her aesthetic senses! She was thrilled by the fact.

She was in her own room, deciding how she wanted to rearrange it, when she heard Michael's voice downstairs. She flew to meet him. He stood waiting for her at the bottom of the stairs, his hands empty.

"Where is it, Michael? Didn't you bring it?"

"We'll have to wait a few more days, I guess. The chest is in the bank's vaults in Thurber's name, and they won't release it, of course, without his authorization. And he is out of town, trying a case. His partner says he may be away for several days."

"Damn it!"

They walked up the stairs arm in arm, with Lilah informing him how she proposed to rearrange certain of the rooms.

"Go right ahead, darling. You're the mistress and the hostess here.... Oh, say, dear! Lonnie Capper is coming out this evening."

Her chin dropped. "I thought we weren't going to have any company," she said.

"Why, dear! What's the matter. I didn't think you meant you didn't want Lonnie, too. Why, he's—"

He saw how useless it was for him to say more. (To be continued.)

CONDEMNED KILLER STABBED TO DEATH

SENATOR EDWIN F. LADD DIES

NORTH DAKOTA SOLON SUCCUMBS TO SHORT ILLNESS ON MONDAY

Death Takes Place At Baltimore—Became Ill While Motoring

Baltimore, Md., June 22.—Senator Edwin F. Ladd, of North Dakota, died at the Church Home and Infirmary here today after a short illness with a complication of kidney trouble and neuritis. He was 65 years old.

Ladd became ill last Friday at Cleveland, O., while motoring to his home in North Dakota to deliver a number of speeches. He came back to Washington but decided to go to Baltimore to submit to medical treatment.

His condition became serious Saturday evening, but improvement was noted Sunday. There was a decided change for the worse this morning and at 10:20 a. m. the senator died.

The senator's wife and two of his eight children, Milton, 21, and Virginia, 17, were at the bedside when he died, together with his secretary, Douglas McArthur, who hurried here from Washington this morning.

Ladd was conscious until a few minutes before the end.

It was announced that Ladd's body would be taken to Washington tomorrow or Wednesday. The widow had not decided today whether interment would be made in North Dakota or at Ladd's old home in Maine.

In the death of Senator Ladd, the third party, stunned by the death last week of its founder and standard bearer, Senator Robert M. La Follette, has received another stunning blow. Senator Ladd was one of the staunchest supporters of the third party movement and was prominently identified with it from the time of its inception.

During his senatorial career, Ladd was instrumental in obtaining the enactment of important farm relief legislation. He was one of the leading members of the senate committee on agriculture and forestry and was chairman of the senate public lands committee, which conducted the Teapot Dome oil investigation following the resignation of Senator Lenroot, of Wisconsin. Senator Ladd is survived by a widow, Mrs. Ritzpah Spogle Ladd whom he married at Annapolis, Md., in 1892 and eight children.

Senator Ladd began his career as a chemist. He was born in Starks, Me., December 13, 1859, the son of John and Rosilla L. Ladd. He received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Maine in 1884 and his LL.D. degree from the same school in 1915.

His marriage to Ritzpah Spogle, of Annapolis, Md., took place August 16, 1893. He was assistant chemist and chief of the New York Experiment Station from 1894 to 1896. He was dean of the school of chemistry and pharmacy and professor of agricultural experiment station from 1896 to 1916. He was also state chemist and became president of the same college February 28, 1916. He acted as food commissioner of North Dakota from 1902. He was editor of the North Dakota Farmer for several years from 1899.

Ladd was a member of the American Chemical Society, Society of Chemical Industry, (London), the Society for the Promotion of Agricultural Science, the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists, past president of the Association for State and National Food and Dairy Departments; member of the Standard Commission of Food Products, for the United States.

He was author of several books, including, "Manual of Analysis," 1898, "Mixed Paints," 1908; and a number of annual reports and bulletins.

Lewis Overstreet, colored, East Church Street, was fined $50 and costs by Judge E. D. Smith in Police Court Monday morning on a charge of disorderly conduct that police say followed a shooting and cutting scrape at Overstreet's home at 12:30 o'clock Monday morning.

Patrolman Charles Simms and Ed Craig stopped combatants after Mrs. Overstreet was shot through the hand by her husband and after she had cut Overstreet on the arm and shoulder with a bread knife. Mrs. Overstreet was in bed at her home Monday recovering from the effects of a beating she said Overstreet administered. She will be charged with disorderly conduct later police say. Police say the trouble started when

SLEEP WALKER TAKEN FOR BURGLAR SLAIN BY FRIGHTENED MAN

Householder Fires Gun Through Door When Noise Arouses Family

Cincinnati, O., June 22.—George Beckman, 21, walked in his sleep in Covington Ky., early Monday. He was tumbling at the door of Ralph Lohre's residence evidently believing it was his own home, when Mrs. Lohre, who had just quieted her infant, heard the slight noise. The Lohre house had been robbed recently.

"It's burglars again, Ralph," she whispered. Lohre took his revolver, slipped downstairs and fired through the front. Beckman, now awake, fell on the porch, dying, a bullet through his heart. He was the son of John Beckman Covington, contractor and worked for his father. The youth known as a somnambulist, was sleeping on a bench in the rear yard of Beckman's home. His subconscious mind impelled him to walk down the street, remove his trousers and shoes and place them on a porch near Lohre's residence. Then he tried to get in the Lohre home.

TRAIN WRECK DEATH LIST REACHES 49

Dover, N. J., June 22.—The death list in the German excursion wreck at the Lackawanna railroad rose to 49 today when Miss Catherine Wilgermeier, Chicago, died in the hospital.

Three others are in a critical condition. Mrs. Louise Kaufman and Mrs. Catherine Weise, both of Chicago and John Nieman, Evanston, Ill.

Investigations of the wreck, being conducted by the state board of utilities commissioners and the interstate commerce commission had proceeded far enough today where it was said the railroad probably will be required to drain the long hill adjacent to the right of way. Sand washing down this hill on the tracks is blamed for the wreck.

HUSBAND SHOTS WIFE AFTER SHE CUTS HIM FOLLOWING ARGUMENT; IS GIVEN FINE

Charles Bush, colored, went to the Overstreet home. According to police, Bush killed Mrs. Overstreet's first husband, Lewis McFarland, and served a penitentiary sentence for the crime.

Overstreet told police his wife began abusing Bush for the slaying and that he interfered, saying that Bush had already been punished for the crime. He said his wife then attacked him with the knife and he ran into another room, where he obtained a .45 calibre rifle. He shot once through the door, the bullet piercing Mrs. Overstreet's hand. Overstreet's wounds were treated by a physician at Police Headquarters and a doctor was also sent to care for his wife.

PRESIDENT TO PLEAD FOR GOVERNMENT ECONOMIES

HUNDREDS GATHER TO PAY FINAL TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF SOLON

Wisconsin Does Honor to La Follette As Body Lies In State

Madison, Wis., June 22.—Done with the battles of politics, done with the trials of lives, done with all things earthly Senator Robert Marion La Follette of Wisconsin, spent the last few brief hours here today among his friends and relatives.

Before he went, hundreds of the home folks who had honored him so highly with power and position and to whom he had dedicated his life, gathered solemnly around his open coffin under the massive dome of the Wisconsin state capitol yesterday to pay a final sorrowing tribute to his memory.

From bank and farm, from mill and yard, from drawing room and kitchen, they came for the brief funeral services that an appreciative commonwealth gives to a leader and illustrious son. They knew no class, no distinction in their honor of grief. There were here senators and representatives, high state officials, men and women of wealth and affluence; side by side with the most ordinary laborer on the farm or in the mill.

For him there were the simplest services, La Follette had wished it to be thus.

"There is no sorrow in death over a life well-lived," he had said.

The funeral services were set for one o'clock. Through the long morning hours, he lay peacefully in the silken folds of his coffin, placed at the entrance to the governor's suite which had been his own during three terms. As a drapery for the coffin was the large American flag which had flown from the masthead of the old battleship Wisconsin. All about were myriads of flowers, high overhead was a wreath of roses and across it a purple ribbon bearing in golden letters the inscription he had coined:

"The will of the people is the law of the land."

The result of his long fight against illness, Senator La Follette's face in death was drawn and worn and tired. His lips were tightly set.

SENATOR FESS GIVES BACCALAUREATE TO ANTIOCH STUDENTS

Senator Simon D. Fess, of Yellow Springs, former president of Antioch College, delivered the baccalaureate address to the thirty members of the graduating class of Antioch in the senior vespers service Sunday night. The seniors were attired in cap and gown.

The service was held under a canopy of arched trees. Accompanied by Philip Bassett at the piano, the double quartet of students, furnished music for the occasion. The double quartet is composed of Eleanor Person, Jean Taylor, Betty Moorman, Lucile Corry, Charles Hoffman, Anthony Dypema, William Rammage and Roger Marshall.

Arthur E. Morgan, president of Antioch College, in introducing Senator Fess, declared: "It is fitting that Senator Fess should be here at this time, as he has had a longer association with the aims of Antioch than most, and can talk to us out of the past."

Speaking of the associations which cluster for him around the name of Antioch, of which he was president ten years, Senator Fess said in part: "Antioch has been the nursery of new ideas in education. It has not only been the purveyor of ideas already known but also a pioneer. To these have been added the splendid ideas of President Morgan."

"Opportunities today are ten times better than a generation ago. The main thing is to fulfill the meaning of a real man or real woman, anything but money takes wings, anything but genuine character is ephemeral."

"The greater thing is to do good in the world. This is the chief measure of success."

The proper emphasis of spiritual values of life were stated by Senator Fess, who declared them necessary to success.

DEFENSE RESTS IN JOSIAH KIRBY TRIAL

Cleveland, O., June 22.—The defense rested its case in the trial of Josiah Kirby, head of the defunct Cleveland Discount Company, about ten o'clock this morning and Special Prosecutor Joseph I. Fagleson immediately opened the argument for the state. Two charges of embezzlement against Kirby have been dismissed by the state and jury will have to consider only the charge of larceny of 4,200 shares of stock.

Radio Hook-up Will Enable Coolidge to Address 20 Million

Washington, June 22.—With a record of having cut expenditures more than two billion dollars since 1921, the administration will make preparations tonight to once more go to bat with the high cost of government.

President Coolidge, with probably twenty million persons with in ear shot, as the result of a radio hookup, will make a plea for expense cutting during the two years beginning July 1.

He will address the semi-annual meeting of the government's business organization, consisting of department chiefs.

A three billion dollar a year government, exclusive of postal operating costs, has been the objective of the administration since the budget system went into effect during the term of the late President Harding.

The government will come close to this mark in the year ending June 30, expenses to date totalling $3,445,000,000. For the new year it is hoped to come a step closer to the objective.

The economy program aimed specifically at tax reduction was stimulated today by information from the treasury that the excess of receipts over expenditures has already passed the $170,000,000 mark. This surplus will be increased considerably in the remaining seven collection days of the year.

The heavy surplus, first estimated at but $67,000,000, has resulted from unexpected collections under the 1924 revenue act.

The collections are within a few million dollars of the estimated $1,660,000,000, with heavy receipts anticipated before June 30.

Receipts from all sources for the year ending June 30, will be approximately $2,675,000,000, officials said. Virtually all of the rocky mountains will be within hearing of the president and Budget Director H. M. Lord, when they talk tonight. The Chesapeake and Ohio Telephone Company, which arranged the hookup, announced the following stations would broadcast the messages.

WCAP, Washington; WEA, New York; WJAR, Providence; WEEI, Boston; WOO, Philadelphia; WSAI, Cincinnati and WOC, Davenport, Ia. An elaborate program by the United States Marine band will add a feature for the radio audience.

Administration leaders believe that the general broadcasting of the talks will inspire the public to exert influence on their congressional representatives to bring about greater economy in government.

A reaction favorable to more economy in state, county and municipal governments, a program backed by the federal government, was likewise anticipated as a reflection of the words of the president.

REMOVAL OF M'COOK FIELD WILL START SOON, IT IS LEARNED

Actual work of construction and re-location of McCook Field, the largest flying field in the United States, at its new site on the 5,000 acre tract of land east of Dayton and almost entirely in program County, is expected to begin in ten days under the direction of Col. Edward S. Walton, engineer in the quarter-master's corps.

Col. Walton, who is one of the most capable and prominent engineers in the army, will reach the field about July 1 and will immediately start work of construction.

An appropriation of $500,000 is available from congress to begin preliminary work. This item will be used in establishing such utilities as the laying of streets and roadways, and sewers and foundations for some of the buildings.

When completed, the new field will be the only air service experimental station in the United States and at the same time will combine the engineering division of the army air service which is now at McCook Field.

Work will be rushed along as quickly as congressional appropriations will permit. It is estimated that nearly four years of work will be required to complete the task.

The new field includes 1,500 acres of the present Wright Field, which field may be re-located at Middletown, Pa., and 3,500 acres of contiguous territory.

The site was donated less than two years ago by public spirited citizens of Dayton who wished to retain the field near Dayton when there was talk of larger and more satisfactory quarters, and who raised $450,000 within two days to buy the 5,000 acre tract and make the government a present of it on which to re-locate the field.

Death Cycle That Hovers Over Senate Takes Toll

Washington, June 22.—A strange death cycle, hovering over the senate of the United States for the past eight years, has closed its 1925 visit with the passing of Senator Robert M. La Follette.

This as the belief today of veteran capitol attaches who have watched eighteen senatorial careers snuffed out prematurely at the prime of their achievements in fateful cycles of three. La Follette's death, they believe, will spare all other members of the senate for another year because the cycle has been completed for 1925.

A Damoclean sword of superstition at least has been removed from over the heads of senators. They, as well as attaches, were of the firm opinion that when one senator died, and a second followed him into the valhalla of statesmen, a third would be sent to join them within the calendar year.

The 1925 cycle began with the death of Medill McCormick, Illinois Republican, on February 25. The second victim claimed was Selden P. Spencer, Republican of Missouri, on April 16. With the Missouriian's passing, a superstitious dread of this strange cycle was born in senatorial breasts. Senators and attaches alike asked each other who would be next.

Their question was answered when "Fighting Bob" was called.

In 1923, Samuel D. Nicholson, Republican of Colorado, the aged Knute Nelson, Republican of Minnesota and William P. Dillingham, Republican of Vermont, joined their comrades in the voiceless debates of the great beyond.

In 1924, the tangled web of fate called three more—Baron Colt, Republican of Rhode Island; Frank B. Brandegee, Republican, of Connecticut and the noted leader of the irreconcilables, Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican, of Massachusetts.

"It may be only superstition and again, it may only be a strange coincidence," said Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, after Spencer's death, "but you know, whenever two senators die, a third is bound to follow within a year. There seems to be a cycle, and, of course, we senators wonder who will be the third."

Similar comments were expressed at the time by Senators Smoot, Republican of Utah; Dale, Republican of Vermont; McNary, Republican of Oregon; King, Democrat of Utah; Harris,

AMUNDSEN WANTS TO FLY FROM KING'S BAY TO NORWAY IS WORD

Friends Persuading Him Not To Attempt To Return By Plane

Oslo, June 22.—Captain Roald Amundsen wants to fly back from King's Bay to Norway, but his friends will try to persuade him not to take the chance, it was learned today.

The airplanes in which the explorer and his party flew to the polar ice cap, have arrived at King's Bay and are being overhauled. After the severe strain the explorer and his ship have been under, his friends believe it would be a needless risk for him to attempt the flight back.

Amundsen probably will not return to Norway before July 1. While mechanics are going over the surviving airplane of the two in which Amundsen, Lieutenant Lincoln Ellsworth of Ohio and their four companions started the flight, Amundsen is busy writing his account of the polar air voyage.

Akron, O., June 22.—Eleven persons were injured in traffic accidents in the Akron district over the week end. They are:

James Dundon, 19, fractured skull, when auto overturned on railroad cross, may die.

Howard Shaward, 52, Fredericksburg, struck by car.

Mrs. Bessie Partridge, 24, possible fractured skull and broken leg when struck by auto, may die.

Richard Akline, 18, motorcycle hit by auto.

John Cunningham, 7, run down by car.

Joe Kubl, 4, hit by car. Joseph Stuhl and water dieth in collision, and Walter and William Smith and Carl Krimmer, car turned over at curve.

BERNARD GRANT DIES FROM WOUNDS GIVEN BY MURDERER "PAL"

Slayer Cheats Rope By Refusing Transfusion of Blood

Chicago, June 22.—Bernard Grant died this morning in the Bridewell Hospital. He "cheated the rope" as he told doctors he would when they worked to save him from the effects of five stab wounds in the heart, neck and cheek, wounds that came from a knife in the hands of his companion in the murder of Patrolman Ralph Souders, during desperate battle in the exercise room of the county jail Saturday.

Walter Krauser, who killed him, is held in solitary confinement in the jail, with special guards over him for the double purpose of preventing him from committing suicide and preventing companions in jail, whose scorn of him as a "squawker" led him to the frenzy of the attack and whose threats of death as retribution for the one unforgivable sin of the underworld led him to his final attack.

"I don't want to live," Grant told doctors who worked on him through Sunday and last night. "Why should I get well to let them hang me? It's better for me to die this way than at the end of the hemp."

He refused a blood transfusion. During the early morning hours, he appeared as if he might recover. Then at daybreak there was a relapse. "If you'd heard of the clans of the death rap on Friday, when they hanged Sams, you'd know why I don't want to live," were his last words as he lapsed into unconsciousness, which ended in death.

Krauser is a moaning, frightened wreck of what was once a human being. During the night he covered in his cell.

"Don't let them put me out in the bull pen with the rest of the prisoners," he pleaded with jail officials. "They told me I was a murderer, twice a murderer, before I stabbed Grant. They told me I killed Grant by my testimony on the stand. They kept taunting me and telling me the underworld never let a man live who squawked on a pal. They told me that even if I beat the case on my second trial that I would never live. They had me all crazy. I thought Grant put them up to it. And I guess thought that if I killed him I would have a better chance."

SUNDAY, LONGEST DAY

The first day of summer, the longest day of the year, was officially ushered in Sunday with continued warm weather and with the mercury hovering about the 85 degree mark all day. Summer began officially at 5:50 o'clock Sunday morning.

Fifteen hours and one minute of bright sunlight was allotted to Xenia Sunday, with Old Sol rising at exactly 5 a. m. and setting at 8:00 p. m. Monday the days began to get gradually shorter until on December 21, 1925, the shortest day of the year will have been reached.

ROBBERY SUSPECT PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Wilbur Dunn, 30, colored, Cedarville pleaded not guilty to a charge of burglary and larceny when arraigned before J. E. Jones, justice of the peace, Monday morning. His hearing was set for Wednesday and he was remanded to the County Jail in default of $500 bond.

Dunn was arrested by Deputy Sheriff John Baughn and accused of implication in the theft of between $400 and $500 from the Charles M. Riggs drug store, South Main Street, Cedarville, in a daylight robbery, Friday. The robbery was committed in the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Ridgway between the hours of 11 a. m. and 4 p. m.

The money stolen had been concealed in a place thought to have been unknown to all but the proprietors, which may aid in solving the robbery, it is believed. No further arrests have been made but the investigation will continue.

SEVEN DROWNINGS IN OHIO MARK NEW WEEK OF VIOLENT DEATHS

Two Motoristic Victims As Autos Are Driven Into Water

Cleveland, O., June 22.—Seven deaths all attributed to drowning, marked the opening of the new week in Ohio. Two of the seven however, were caused by auto accidents.

John Gotto, 31, of Wickliffe, was drowned when the auto in which he was riding, plunged into an abandoned stone quarry filled with water. Others in the auto escaped without serious injury.

Hugh Sutton, Berlin Heights merchant, lost his life, when, blinded by the lights of other machines, he drove his car into Sandusky bay.

The drowning accidents included: John Miller, 25 and his wife, 23, in the Portage lakes near Akron.

Allen Ferris, 21, in Lake Erie, near Cleveland.

Miss Beatrice Dusseau, 19, at Toledo.

John Wheeler, 16, at Cincinnati.

FOUR INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Columbus, O., June 22.—Four persons were nursing injuries, three of them in hospitals here as a result of traffic accidents over the week end. Anthonie Suinice, 6, was being treated for head wounds suffered when she was struck by an auto. Walter Cochrone was believed severely hurt, after his auto was in collision with another car. He is being treated at Mercy Hospital.

Samuel Knapp was treated for cuts and bruises after his motorcycle collided with an auto. Thomas Evans was nursing head injuries after the fourth traffic mishap.

"HOBO HOME" BURNS IN $10,000 BLAZE

Columbus, O., June 22.—Hoboes and "penny" bootleggers were looking for a new home today following a spectacular three alarm fire which razed a four story abandoned building of the Williams Milling Company, close to the downtown section here.

Damage was estimated at $10,000. Firemen were on guard all night after the blaze was extinguished. No fear sparks carried by the breeze had set other fires in nearby lumber yards.

LAME AND HALT OF WORLD WAR WELCOMED BY OMAHA AS DISABLED VETERANS CONVENE

Omaha, June 22.—Omaha today extended the hand of welcome to Disabled American Veterans in what was considered one of the most impressive spectacles in the history of the metropolis of Nebraska.

In row after row in the center of the Civic Auditorium sat hundreds of the halt, the lame and the blind of the World War, as delegations from the 25,000 men in the hospitals throughout the country and the thousands more who are being vocationally rehabilitated and released from the handicaps incurred during their national service. Filling the aisles and packing the galleries were the people of the city, who witnessed the fifth annual national convention of the organization of the war's disabled, which has played such a prominent part in the endeavor to solve the vast problem of caring for the maimed that it was one year ago accorded Congressional recognition. Presiding was Frank J. Irwin, national commander, who was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery before he fell wounded in front of the Hindenburg line as a member of the Twenty-seventh Division, while at his side was Frank Williams, senior vice-commander, who, too, wore the Distinguished Service Cross for valor.

ALLEViate DISTRESS The session was opened by Rabbi Michael Aaronson, of Cincinnati, national chaplain, permanently blinded by shell fire, who offered the invocation. It is the boast of the Disabled American Veterans that of all the

SIX PITCHERS FAIL TO STOP CLOTHIERS AND RESERVES LOSE

The Millard Clothiers of Springfield lived up to all the nice things said about them and proved they were too strong for the Reserves by handing them the worst beating they ever received at Washington Park Sunday afternoon. The final score was: Millards 25, Reserves 7.

The game was terrible throughout. The visitors got twenty-three hits off six pitchers and earned twenty-two runs. Cyphers, regular and star slabsman was hit hard and retired after seven and one-third innings of work. A dozen runs and thirteen hits were garnered off him while thirteen runs and ten hits were gotten off Ritter, Early, Leach, Finlay and Cain who tried to pitch but were not successful.

The visitors carried too many guns for the locals and hit the ball to all parts of the field. Of the twenty-three bingles they made, seven were for extra bases. Duffy and Shank were the batting stars. The former had a perfect day, setting four bingles out of four trips to the plate, while Shank was at bat five times and laced out two doubles and two singles. Snyder also hit well and drove out two doubles and a pair of singles out of seven times at the bat. All the members of the Millard team got one or more hits with the exception of Joe, mascot, who batted for Shank in the ninth and was given a walk.

Hickman, who hurried for the winners, displayed nice form and retired the locals in order for the first three rounds. He pitched but seven innings and held the locals to ten hits and four runs. He had a nice fast one and a slow hook for a change of pace which whiffed eleven of the Reserve batters.

Reserves will meet the Hamilton Clarks next Sunday at Washington Park.

Manager Chambliss will sign five new players for this game. Friend, who caught here before will be back behind the plate again while two new infielders, another pitcher and outfielder will be signed and announced later in the week.

FAVOR WASHINGTON TO DEFEAT OTHERS IN ANNUAL REGATTA

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 22—Seven varsity crews representing the ultimate in collegiate watermanship, will leave the mark at Crum Elbow, on the upper Hudson, late this afternoon for their three-mile journey to the unofficial championship of the American colleges. All men are created equal, but some become very sour oarsmen.

It will be a seven crew race at the start. It will not be more than a two crew race at the finish, and the University of Washington, the defendant champion, will be one of them.

The rest of the field will be made up of Cornell, Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Columbia, charter members of the association, and Wisconsin and the Navy, enjoying with Washington the guest privileges of the occasion. A perfect host is one who panders to the taste of his guests and those officiating today will be far from imperfect in this respect.

From all accounts Pennsylvania and Syracuse will indulge in deathless duel for fourth place with Cornell and Columbia fighting it out for the doubtful honor of finishing sixth in a field of seven. The "guest crews," in brief, are figured to row one-two-three.

Washington and Yale, a crew using the Washington methods of a Washington product, Ed Leader, have dominated the rowing situation, East and West, for the last three years. A continuance of this domination is looked for today leaving the balance of power again with the West.

The Coast entry won the race in 1923 and 1924 and finished second to the Navy in 1922. The latter is the only eight that is thought to have a

CREATOR OF JIGGS IS CARTOONED

George McManus, creator of Jiggs, Maggie and the other characters in the well-known comic strip, "Bringing Up Father," which appears in The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican daily, has himself been cartooned in this picture by Conrado W. chance with the Westerner this afternoon. The Middles have beaten everything except Yale among the Eastern crews this season and seem to have a fast, powerful eight. They will need a lot of beating in the last mile but, unfortunately, Washington is only beginning to row at that point. The Westerners are at odds on choice to win.

Wisconsin has been doped to finish third, in spite of loud laments from the Badger camp. It was good enough, however, to chase a very fine Washington eight right down to the line last year and with nothing in particular to be among the Eastern entries, seems destined for a position not worse than third.

Clears Complexion

"Oh! how clear and beautiful your complexion is today, my dear!"

THERE is a certain joy—a certain pride—in knowing you are admired, whether it be from father, brother, husband or sweetheart! And back of that joy is the satisfaction of knowing all is well.

Men are fascinated by the charms of beauty. Women gaze with envy, secretly jealous, perhaps, wondering—hoping—praying for that attractiveness which is not theirs. But why the wondering—the hoping—the praying for that craved for attractiveness—that clear skin—that beauty. A clear skin—is the barometer of one's condition. A healthy skin radiates beauty. Pure, clean blood means a clear skin.

S.S.S. is waiting to help you. It will rid your blood of its impurities and give you that clear complexion. Since 1826 S.S.S. has been fighting people of blood impurities, from pimples, from blackheads, boils, eczema and from rheumatism, too. UNIQUE SCHOOL IS TEACHING EXPERT FOX BREEDING; OPENED IN PENNSYLVANIA

North East, Pa., June 22—Fashion has forced another profession into the already long list of subjects in America's "higher education"—expert fox breeding.

A school in fox breeding, with a class of ambitious young men recruited from all over the United States, opened today on a 75-acre fox ranch three miles from North East.

A force of professors, expert in the wiles and ways of Br'er Fox, began teaching men competent to cater to the ever-growing demand of the well-dressed American woman for exquisite furs.

The new institution characterized by educators as the most unique school in the United States, is the Rusch School of Fox Breeding, named after its founder, Louis Edward Rusch, of Washington D. C., who is president of the American Fox Institute. This class will have an eight weeks Summer course.

The pupils will study the history of fox breeding in this and other countries, elementary zoology, the principles of animal heredity, and inbreeding and outbreeding; in general, the relation of the fox industry to American business life and its opportunities as a career. They will be instructed in the various branches of theory, with special lectures and discussions, and will be fully schooled in the commercial phase of the industry, such as effective financing, administering, advertising, selling and shipping methods.

"The school is not operated for profit" Rusch said. "It is supported through the voluntary contributions of men who have faith in the silver back fox industry."

Rusch declared that during its short existence as an established industry it now represents an investment of more than $12,000,000.

ENGLIMAN-BRUSK NUPTIALS SUNDAY

Miss Rose Engliman, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Engliman was united in marriage with Mr. Jack N. Brusk, Dayton, with one of the most elaborate nuptial ceremonies ever performed in the city, at the home of the bride's parents, West Main Street, Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

Seventy-five guests were received for the ceremony. The Engliman home was a scene of floral beauty, each room converted into a bower of greenery and flowers.

Preceding the ceremony, the Misses Leah and Henrietta Gleiwitz, Dayton, gave a violin and piano program their numbers including "O Promise Me," "I Love You Truly," and "At Dawning," the instruments serving as the accompaniment for the vocal solos of Miss Leah. They blended into the wedding march from Lohengrin, which marked the entrance of the bride party.

The runway to the altar was made of white linen, lined from the staircase to the altar, with huge white baskets of pink snapdragons, gladioli and gypsophelia.

The altar was arranged to resemble a pergola, in white covered with palms, ferns and various greenery. A satin canopy in keeping with the custom of the ceremony, covered the altar.

Baskets of the same flowers were used over the entire house, combined with potted plants.

The procession was led by the ringbearer, Little Melba Ruth Sacks, Dayton. She wore a frock of robin's egg blue chiffon. The rings were concealed in a basket of flowers.

The bridesmaids were Miss Sarah Lee Engliman, sister of the bride and Miss Helen Shane, Warsaw, Ind., sorority sister of the bride.

Miss Engliman wore a frock of turquoise blue georgette over peach taffeta. Miss Shane's dress was fashioned of georgette in deep pink over a more delicate shaded foundation of satin. Both frocks were made along the same girlish lines with tight-fitting bodices, and the skirt foundation combined with lace and clusters of satin flowers. Both wore silver slippers and nude hose and carried trailing bouquets of gypsophelia and Liberty roses.

Miss Florence Engliman, another sister of the bride, walked next, as maid of honor. Her gown was of pea green georgette with a huge corsage rose with long silver stem. Her bouquet was the same as that of the bridesmaids.

The bride was met at the foot of the staircase by her father, who gave her in marriage. Tall standards of pink roses were placed at the spot, marking the beginning of the runway, where baskets of pink ribbons were intertwined with pink ribbons.

The bride's gown was fashioned of ivory satin and Duchesse lace. The bodice was made simply, the bouffant skirt being formed of petal tiers of the satin, and lengthened with two flounces of lace. The neck finished with a touch of lace, which also formed the cap sleeves, and a single white rose was placed at the corsage.

Her veil of tulle was caught cap-fashion with a coronet of orange blossoms and fell to form a train. White satin slippers were buckled with lace and orange blossoms.

Her bouquet was of white angelus roses, with an overdrap of valley lilies and gypsophelia, with a shower of valley lilies and Irish Point lace. Her only jewelry was a strand of opera pearls, the bridal gift of the bridegroom.

The bride and her attendants were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Max Frankel, Dayton, and the two officiating rabbis.

The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Samuel Mayerburg of Ben Yusef Synagogue and Rabbi S. Burick, of Beth Abraham Synagogue, both of Dayton. The double ring service was used, the ring placed on the bride's finger belonging to her grandmother, and used in the ceremony performed in Europe more than a half-century ago.

A five-course dinner was served after the service. Covers for twelve were laid at the bride's table, including: Mr. and Mrs. Brusk, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Engliman, Mrs. A. E. Brusk, Dayton, the bridegroom's mother, Rabbi and Mrs. Mayerburg, Rabbi Burick, the Misses Florence and Sarah Lee Engliman, Helen Shane and Mr. Max Frankel.

Appointments were in pink and white, the bride's table being centered with an immense wedding cake, which was cut by Mrs. Brusk. Corsages were placed at each woman's cover, attached to the wedding cake with pink streamers. Quartet tables seated the other guests about the rooms, centered with plaques of gypsophelia and sweet peas. Music during dinner was furnished by the Misses Gleiwitz.

From 8 o'clock, in the evening one hundred and fifty guests were received. The entire guest list was composed in the majority of out-of-town guests. Music was furnished during the reception by Perrine's orchestra of Dayton and dancing was enjoyed.

Two punch tables were popular during the evening, and held plaques of snapdragons and gypsophelia.

Mrs. Engliman received in a gown of Coolidge grey chiffon, over salmon satin, with lace panels. She wore a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Brusk, mother of the bridegroom, wore a handsome gown in black, heavily beaded and embroidered.

Mr. and Mrs. Brusk left late Sunday night by motor on an extended trip, their destination not being divulged. Mrs. Brusk's traveling outfit was an ensemble suit of ashes of roses flannel, applied in navy blue, with a close-fitting hat of dark blue. On their return they will reside with relatives until the completion of their home on Vista Road, Dayton. Before leaving Mrs. Brusk presented the flowers of her bouquet, of two parts, to her mother and Mrs. Brusk, Sr.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were silk umbrellas and a pearl bracelet to the ring bearer. Many handsome wedding gifts were received by the couple from relatives and friends.

Mrs. Brusk graduated in March from the Ohio State University. Before attending the state university, she attended Miami University one year. She is a member of Alpha Epsilon Phi Sorority.

Mr. Brusk is a certified public accountant. He is a graduate of Stivers High School Dayton and the New York University.

The decorations were arranged by Mr. Ed Lampert of the Engle Floral Company.

Guests were received from Detroit, Mich., Warsaw, Ind., Weston O., Dayton, Cincinnati, Piqua, Sidney, Springfield and New York City.

LIFE SAVING EXPERT OF AMERICAN RED CROSS GIVES SWIMMING POINTS

LESSON NO. 7 RESTORING TO CONSCIOUSNESS By COMMODORE W. E. LONGFELLOW.

Life Saving Expert, American National Red Cross.

Drowning is a form of asphyxiation. The submerged person, being unable to exhale and take in fresh oxygen, is filled with dangerous gas. The in-expert bather is gagged when a few drops of water gets into the windpipe. The epiglottis—the little trap door muscle in the throat—has a spasm, and contracts, preventing the victim from exhaling, so that no fresh air is taken in. The heart keeps on pumping unpurified blood and the impure air in the lungs through the system.

The carbon-dioxide gas in the lungs causes poisoning, and the heart slows down so that no pulse is found even with a stethoscope. Little or no water gets into the lungs even though the stomach is filled. The treatment for drowning is the same as for electrocution, smoke suffocation and asphyxiation.

LAY FACE DOWNWARD

The prone pressure method has restored persons after hours of work even though they had been under water as much as half an hour.

Take the victim from the water. Lay him on the ground or floor in an airy place, face downward, with arms pulled higher than the level of the shoulders. Bend one of the person's forearms so that the mouth and nose rest on the back of the hand.

Quickly kneel astride the knees of the patient on both knees. This position gives you the best vantage point from which to watch the person's face.

Slide your hands down from the shoulders to the soft place at the waist line at the base of the floating ribs. Let your hands rest over the floating ribs with the butts of the palms four to six inches apart.

Then with your elbows stiff sway your whole body forward from the knees as fulcrum, so that the weight rests upon the lower ribs.

of three stories, and one of the finest in the State. It was built for the use of Free Staters, and was known as the Free State House. It was designed as a temporary home for Free Staters, and to induce them to settle in Kansas and keep the State from pro-slave people.

BURNED DOWN

But the new hotel was not to endure for long. A Grand Jury, decidedly pro-slavery in ideas, was in session. They decided the hotel was a menace to the cause of slavery and even looked upon it as a possible fort for the use of Free Staters. Accordingly they ordered it burned down, and on the evening of May 21, 1856, a little over a month after its completion, there remained only smoldering ruins.

A year later Colonel S. W. Eldridge, a Free Stater, and a man of wealth, decided to erect another hotel on the old site. It was four stories high, and accounts of that time describe its furnishings as extravagant and luxurious.

BORDER RAID

This building stood until August 21, 1863, that memorable day when Quantrell and his band of border men swept down upon the little town to burn and pillage.

The townsfolk were taken by surprise, and when the raiders rode away that afternoon they left 100 dead and many wounded. Virtually every house and building had been fired, and the Eldridge House was a mass of smoldering embers.

But the Eldridges were not daunted by the event, and the following year saw another Eldridge House arising upon the new site. It was not as large as the former structure nor were the furnishings as expensive, but it was a good hotel for those days.

Frank Yee, laundry operator, 2 West Market Street, denies a report made public last week that he had closed his place of business and left Xenia.

Yee was said to have left Xenia after complaining to police that he had received anonymous letters containing threats. He now says the report was false and that he has not been absent from his laundry but is still operating it and is now open for business. He denies he contemplated leaving Xenia.

HARRY THAW.

HARRY THAW, who has been more or less in the public eye since the slaying of Sanford White, has at last rebelled against the publicity given him.

Thaw says he realized he must stand for considerable attention from a curious public and rather approves the courteous way the general public has treated his return to old scenes on Broadway, but that he can not stand the "hounding and pounding" of the press.

If Thaw but realizes it, he is still paying for the sensational slaying of the architect, White. If he but knew it, the long years he spent in an insane asylum can not wipe out the memory of a crime of such public interest.

Now, though he has evidently satisfied the law, he must still be known to the public as the slayer of Sanford White. He must still at all times be marked as a public figure, subject to the gazing of the public.

In other words, Thaw is and perhaps, always will be, good news copy. The public picks its idols from strange sources and perhaps there is the element of idolatry in the interest the public feels for the eccentric rich man who chose a public place for his killing. The press may be "hounding and pounding" at Harry Thaw but it is doing no more than attempting to satisfy the public's demand for information about him. If his conscience has been numbed by his years in confinement he will still find that unwelcome publicity will take its place in keeping him from forgetting the shooting that threw him in the public eye.

EDUCATION

WHILE hundreds of young men and women are being graduated from high schools and colleges during this month of June, it is interesting to recall that this seeking of higher knowledge on the part of both sexes is a comparatively recent condition.

Investigation of the graduating rosters in high schools in recent years will show that in the last ten years, the number to receive diplomas has increased 100 per cent or nearly so.

This condition, prevailing both in cities and rural communities, indicates increasing recognition in the advantages that higher education gives the youth to prepare him for his future career.

Only a few years ago the policy of withdrawing the boy from school at the completion of the eighth grade in order to permit him to start to work, was the rule. Educators found that their biggest problem in keeping the child in school was in bridging the gap between the eighth grade and the high school.

In many communities the institution of the junior high school has accomplished this purpose. It gives the pupil the advantage of departmentalized instruction and increases interest in school work for the student whose interest is in danger of being submerged in a desire to be rid of books and on the road to earning his own way.

The demand for skilled training in practically all lines of endeavor has also served as a lesson to the youth who would give up his studies too soon. As modern machinery has increased production and efficiency and reduced expenses so it has been found that the capably trained man or woman offers better advantages and thus wins better opportunities in this workaday world.

Thus the youth who must drop out of school now at the completion of eight grades is not only unfortunate and decidedly handicapped but will find that his erstwhile companions make faster strides and achieve more once they have completed their schooling.

THE MOTHERS OF THE MINISTERS

The mothers of the ministers, how happy they must be. For they have realized the dream my mother held for me! They have the joy they hoped for, and the good for which they've prayed. And the wish that every mother of a baby boy has made.

I never see an acrobat go tumbling through the air. But what I think some mother's little minister is there; When Ty Cobb hits a homer and the crowd applauds the "peach," I wonder if his mother wouldn't rather hear him preach.

Above my little cradle in the days of long ago A great cathedral hovered and the bells swung to and fro. And every Sunday mother heard the chimes and seemed to see The worshippers assembling there to listen unto me.

But oh, I took to writing, for I was a wilful lad. And the minister she dreamed of, was a joy she never had. For my brothers took to business and I choose to serve the Press.

And I robbed my little mother of her dream of happiness.

Yet what if every mother had her fondest dream come true. And every mother's son should do the work she'd have him do; The world would teem with ministers, there'd be no many here You couldn't get a plumber when the faucet's out of gear.

Chili con Carne: Buy two pounds of beef (ground as for Hamburg Steak). Also buy two thick slices of salt pork. Cut the pork up with a sharp knife and fry it to a crisp in a large saucepan; then remove the solid part left and put in the ground beef. Stir meat till the grease is well blended with it, and let cook over moderate heat about 20 minutes, stirring often. Add one cupful of sliced raw (peeled) onions and let continue to fry mildly for five minutes longer. Now add three cups of boiling water, cover the pot, and let simmer one hour, stirring now and then to prevent sticking on the bottom. Thicken with one tablespoon of flour mixed to a paste with a little cold water. Season to suit taste with Chili powder if you have it—or a little piece of a small red hot pepper finely minced. Serve hot.

Rice O'Brien: Cut enough ripe tomatoes small to fill a pint measure, then heat. To the hot tomatoes add one cup of cooked rice (either white or brown) one cup of tender chopped celery, one half cup of minced green sweet peppers (no seeds) 2 tablespoons of chopped olives (either stuffed or unstuffed) three tablespoons of minced raw onions, one teaspoon of salt, and a dash of paprika. Stir well together, cover the saucepan, and let the mixture simmer gently for one hour. Serve hot.

Marshmallow Cake: Cream together one heaping tablespoons of butter and one and one half cups of sugar. Add two beaten unseparated eggs, and beat the batter till light. Now add one cup of sweet milk which you have previously cooked with two squares of unsweetened chocolate till thick, and then cooled. Also add two cups of bread flour sifted with one and one half teaspoons of baking powder. Flavor with one teaspoon of vanilla and bake either 40 minutes in loaf form in a moderate oven, or about 30 minutes in layer form in a quicker oven. Frost with the following:

Marshmallow Icing: Boil together one cup of sugar and one fourth cup of water till it "threads." At the same time, melt one fourth of a pound of marshmallows over hot water. Now add the melted marshmallows to the hot sirup (which has spun a thread) and turn the mixture over a stiffly-whipped egg white. Add one teaspoon of vanilla. Beat till the right consistency to spread.

RETALIATION

It has always seemed a strange thing to me that human nature contains so many unwholesome characteristics.

I have never been able to understand, for instance, why a person so delights in retaliation.

Why is it that when someone hurts you, you want to hurt back in return? It would seem that when a hurt is received that it should be replaced only by some kindness to show how big the recipient of the hurt can be.

Happily there are many in this world who use this latter method and who grow in character worth every time.

The great quest of life is for happiness. And the only thing that is able to beget this happiness itself. Money makes money. So does kindness bring kindness.

There is nothing to be gained by "getting back" at someone who has injured you. The more you try to do it, the more unhappy you become and the more you shrink in soul.

The essence of war is retaliation. Whoever heard of a happy war?

There is only one kind of thinking that is constructive and that is thinking that is free from poison. When you think in terms of co-operation with the forces that build your physical health you are laying the foundation for a healthy spiritual growth.

Those things which make you happy are usually the things that make others happy. Distribute them.

If you drink in beauty wherever you find it you cannot help but radiate it. And after all, it's the atmosphere that you carry about you that you finally feel as the atmosphere of the world and life in general.

HEART DAY BRINGS GOOD SUM TO HELP ORGANIZATION WORK

"Heart Day" receipts, when checked up by Mrs. J. J. Stout, who took charge of the Volunteers of America tag day held in Xenia Saturday, totaled $154.48.

The children worked faithfully from early in the morning until the close and those interested in the affair were deeply grateful to all who helped in any way to make the enterprise successful.

At the close of the "contest" it was found that Elizabeth Ammer was entitled to the first prize, having obtained for her tag, $10.31. The second prize was won by Thelma Anderson, who had $10.24, and the third winner was Roberta Ralls, who had $9.14.

Other prizes were awarded as follows: fourth, Margaret Need, $8.52; fifth, Francis Haller, $8.21; sixth, Frances Marshall, $7.36.

The first prize was a $4.50 gold pencil given by J. Thorb Charters; second, $1.75 fountain pen, given by Sayre and Humphill; third prize, pair of roller skates, given by Greene County Hardware Company; fourth, Kodak given by Sohn's Drug Store; fifth $1.50 box of candy given by Xenia Candy Kitchen and sixth prize, compact given by Jobe Brothers company.

The drive was a success because everyone solicited gave something. Mrs. Stout said Monday, the largest gift being $1.75, the rest coming in small amounts, as follows: Eileen, $8; nickels, $3.45; fifty cents, $3.50; quarters, $3.75; pennies, $1.28; The thirty-three children who solicited covered the city thoroughly. "This proves the welfare work, especially among children, is coming more and more to occupy an important place in the consideration of enlightened people over the entire world," Mrs. Stout said.

All the children solicitors were given passes to the Bijou and Orpheum Theaters by J. T. Hibbert and H. L. Binder. They were as follows: Ivadell Yeager, Eleanor Art, Albert La-Marr, Nicholas Jack, Frances Marshall Helen LeSourd, Thelma Anderson, Martha Bath, Lawrence Eyer, Eileen Sayre, Doris McCormick, Jean Marshall, Ruby Bice, Roberta Ralls, Francis Tuhey, Helen Brenner, Ruby Ellison, Mary Brickel, Martha Herr, Ruth Day, Helen Chambliss, Mary Buckles, Margaret Need, Donna Harness, Thelma Phillips, Marjorie Jenkins, Veronica Kelble, Anna Rachford, Betty Lauer, Elizabeth Ammer, Frances Haller Ruth Huff and Katherine Art.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Watkins, Mr. R. O. Watkins and children, Mrs. Clara Watkins Smith of Longview, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Hardon and Mr. Alfred Leach enjoyed a delightful motor trip to Hamilton, O., Sunday, the guests of relatives.

Mr. William Tibbs, chemist and Mr. Marco Killings, pharmacist, both of Chicago, motored to Xenia to attend the Watkins-Hardon nuptials. They remained a few days, returning Thursday evening after Wilberforce commencement.

Tuesday afternoon, June 16th between the hours of 1:30 and 5:00 the Watkins-Hardon wedding ceremonies occurred. Promptly at 1:30 Mrs. William O. Stokes, of Dayton, O., sang several appropriate selections including "O Promise Me," "At Dawning," and "I Love You Truly." At 1:45 Miss Alberta Mayo of Wilberforce university played softly Lohengrin's wedding march and the bride party entered. Little Miss Margaret Marie and Pauline, niece of the bride, were flower girls. Robert Jr., was ring bearer. Mrs. Clara Smith, sister of the bride acted as matron of honor. Mr. Marco Killings of Chicago was best man. The bride entered on the arm of her father. She was dressed in a simple georgette gown, with a veil draped with orange blossoms. The bride party stood under an arch of roses and ferns. Across the arch in letters of gold was the Latin inscription, Amor Omnia Vincit. The Rev. P. A. Nichols, the former pastor of the bride now of Toledo, officiated. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held until 5 o'clock. There were quite a few out of town guests from Wilberforce, Springfield, Ohio, Gary, Ind.; Columbus, Ohio, Dayton, Hamilton and Chicago.

EVOLUTION TRIAL BEGINS HERE

Aha, an evolution trial right at our door. Hector Appleseed of the Hammer club was on trial last evening. Here are a few notes from the trial:

ATTORNEY SMITH—Mr. Appleseed, you are charged with taking stock in Darwin's theory.

MR. APPLESEED—How much stock did I take and how much am I charged with? I'll never pay for it.

ATTORNEY SMITH—You don't get me. You are accused of believing that man descended from the monkey. Do you or do you not believe in evolution?

MR. APPLESEED—I believe in evolution, revolution, and solution. I think the monkey has its place in civilization.

ATTORNEY SMITH—That being so, where is the monkey's place?

MR. APPLESEED—With a grind organ.

ATTORNEY SMITH—Mr. Appleseed, this is no place for monkey business. Why do you believe in evolution?

MR. APPLESEED—Because some of the young people of today are making monkeys out of themselves. The world is not going to the dogs. If we keep on, we will some day be a nation of monkeys.

ATTORNEY SMITH—You may examine the cross witness.

ATTORNEY JONES—Mr. Appleseed, do you not know that believing in evolution is contrary to the principles of the Hammer Club?

MR. APPLESEED—No, sir, I am not aware that the Hammer club has any principles.

ATTORNEY JONES—Here, now, let us have no monkey shines. Do you know of any reason why you should not be kicked out of the Hammer Club?

MR. APPLESEED—Yes, sir, I have a bottle of milk in my hip pocket.

ATTORNEY JONES—The bottle of milk is all that saves you. It only goes to show that your bottle of milk today kept the doctor away. That will do for this time.

MONKEY BUSINESS

My granddad was a monkey
And lived on skin and ale;
He died along the roadside
And thereby hangs a tail.

A mighty good classified page. Have you a room for rent?

Ain't it warm!
Ain't it hot!
Folks must think I know it not—
All they say is: "Ain't it hot."

SELECTION OF HOME SUPERINTENDENT MAY BE MADE AT MEET HERE

Selection of a successor to Sylvius Garver as superintendent of the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors' Orphans' Home, Xenia, will probably be delayed for several more weeks, it was indicated by Marcus R. Limb, mayor of Wooster, O., and president of the board of trustees of the Home following a meeting of the board held in Columbus Saturday.

The board failed to choose successors to Mr. and Mrs. Garver, superintendent and chief matron, at the Saturday meeting. The resignation of Superintendent Garver becomes effective June 30.

Since the next meeting of the trustees will be held July 3, in Xenia, it is probable that some member of the present staff of the institution will be temporarily appointed to fill the vacancy between the time Superintendent Garver leaves office and his successor is appointed. Work is diminished through the early summer because many of the children are on their vacations, according to Mr. Limb.

Applications for the position will still be received and given consideration declared Major Limb, because the board has decided to take more time in making a selection. The total number of applicants was raised to seven when it was revealed Saturday that O. C. Whitaker, of Canton, is a candidate.

Major Limb pointed out that it is the board's desire to find some one qualified along the lines of a city manager as the institution is a veritable city in itself, since it supplies its own water and electric light systems, its buildings, schools, playgrounds, industrial departments and service groups.

The appointee must also be an honorable discharged soldier or sailor.

former service organizations, it has the most serious annual convocation due to the fact that the purpose of the federation is the attempt to alleviate the suffering of its members.

But the opening session was an event which gave the delegations from every section reason to be proud of their scars, for their praise was sung.

Regretting that he was unable to attend, President Coolidge sent a message, in the course of which he said:

"The organization of the Disabled American Veterans occupies a highly respected position with the authorities at Washington. The endeavor which you have so effectively put forth to help solve the problems of those who suffered most severely by reason of the war, is a source of great encouragement to those who are directly responsible for this task.

"Please communicate to your comrades the assurance of my deep and continuing interest in their welfare. I wish them to be assured that we are endeavoring to the utmost of our ability to fulfill the obligation of the nation for whom the battle still endures."

Veterans of all ages—Grand Army of the Republic, Confederate Veterans, Spanish War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Military Order of the World War and American Legion—each had a representative present to pay high tribute to the Disabled American Veterans. What was looked upon as particularly significant was that for the first time the Legion sent its national commander to personally extend greetings—General James A. Drain stirring the great crowd with his praise of the men who constitute the membership of the Disabled American Veterans.

REMEMBER DEAD

But the most thunderous ovation of the day came as Commander Irwin drew together a grizzled member of the G. A. R., in blue, and a Confederate veteran, in gray, who embraced, while the military band played the strains of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Dixie."

One of the constitutional requirements of the Disabled American Veterans is that tribute be paid to the departed comrades during the national convention and the representatives of the association have been engaged half way around the world not only honoring the American dead, but the dead of the Allies. At the shrill notes of a bugler's "Attention!" the throng in the auditorium stood in silent reverence, and simultaneously a detail of the District of Columbia Department of the Disabled American Veterans placed a wreath upon the tomb of the American Unknown at Arlington, while the American Military Attaches overseas deposited Disabled American Veterans' floral offerings upon the cenotaphs and tombs of the French Unknown at Paris, the Belgian Unknown at Brussels, the British Unknown at London and the Italian Unknown at Rome.

The period of silence was broken by Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink singing "Taps," followed by "The Star Spangled Banner," the military song and the National Anthem being carried by radio to the bedside of wounded men in the hospitals.

Upon the part of the State, Governor McMullen and, for the city, Mayor Dahlgren extended greetings, and the replies were by the national officers of the disabled men's union. Cablegrams, telegrams and letters were read from the war-time commanders of the allied nations, as well as from Colonel Dwight Davis, Acting Secretary of War; General Pershing, Secretary Wilbur, of the Navy; General John L. Hines, Chief of Staff of the Army, and Admiral Eberle, Naval Chief of Operations; and General John A. Lejeune, Commandant of the Marine Corps.

This afternoon and evening the visiting delegates will enjoy an extensive program of entertainment arranged by the citizens of Omaha.

BOWERSVILLE WINS SUNDAY TILT OVER SPRINGFIELD TEAM

The Bowersville Bayliffs won their first baseball game of the 1925 season Sunday afternoon at Bowersville by defeating the strong Roush Construction Company team of Springfield by a score of 9 to 4. Hendricks pitched a strong game for the winners allowing thirteen hits which were kept well scattered. He was given good support in the field.

The management announces that its pitching ace, Wells, will hurl the next Sunday game with the Park A. C. nine of Springfield. Wells is not satisfied with his berth at Washington C. H. in the South-Central Ohio League and will return to his old team.

Wells made an excellent showing in the three games he pitched in the league, beating Wilmington once and London on two occasions.

The Sunday game was a pitchers' battle between Neevannas and Hendricks for six innings. Murrell starred for the Bayliffs behind the bat cutting off many runners who attempted to steal by quick, accurate throws to second and third. The score by innings: Springfield 0 1 0 1 0 0 2 0 0 4 13 3; Bayliffs 0 1 0 1 0 0 3 4 x 9 9 2

COACH KOLB ISSUES INITIAL CALL FOR GRID CANDIDATES

Coach Victor Kolb, Columbus new director of athletics at Central High School has issued a call for backfield and center candidates for next fall's football team, to meet with him at Central High at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Coach Kolb has just arrived in Xenia and will spend the summer here, as life guard at the Wilson swimming pool. He graduated last week from Ohio Wesleyan University Delaware, where he earned an athletic reputation under the Garbier school of training that indicates he will put Central High teams back in the win column this fall.

The new mentor will hold regular sessions with his backs and center candidates during the summer to gain headway on the task he will assume with the entire squad when school opens. He also hopes to inaugurate a training camp during the latter part of the summer for all candidates so that the prospective athletes may imbibe fundamentals under his direction while also enjoying camp life.

Inroads of graduation this year will make it necessary for the coach to train considerable new material, in which an early start will be beneficial.

also provided for those from Cincinnati and intermediate points, Columbus, New Paris, Springfield, and Lebanon.

The picnic was voted one of the most successful ever given by the division while the attendance was up to the average. The picnic was held at Xenia this year because of the easy transportation facilities.

Among the prominent officials of the division who attended the outing were R. C. Barnard, Cincinnati, division superintendent; Frank C. Davis, Cincinnati, division train master; W. C. Raedel, Cincinnati, master mechanic; R. C. Sponsella, Cincinnati, road foreman of engines, and Captain J. I. Cosby, Cincinnati, head of the division police. Numerous assistant trainmasters, road foremen of engines and master mechanics also attended.

L. W. Geer, Chicago, assistant general manager of the Western Division combining the Southwestern and Northwestern Divisions, could not be present at the picnic as first announced.

T. A. Pendry, Cincinnati, freight agent at the C. L. and N. depot there, was elected president of the Veteran Employees' Association at the annual meeting of the organization held in the morning, succeeding S. L. Mider, retired trainmaster, Cincinnati, who has held the position for the past three years. Practically all remaining officers of the organization were re-elected for another year.

The association is composed of employees who have been in the service of the company for twenty years or more. The organization has a membership of 700 in this division which represents the employees and officials of all departments. The association holds annual meetings for the purpose of allowing old employees to "get together" for a social day and renew old acquaintances. Ninety-two members are on the retired list.

Following the annual veterans' meeting an entertainment, consisting of musical and specialty numbers was provided by the Women's Aid. Mrs. William C. Raedel was chairman of the entertainment committee.

The entertainment opened with a toe dance given by Miss Helen O'Dea, accompanied by Miss McKee at the piano. Miss Eleanor McDonnell sang a solo accompanied by Miss Margaret Kampman at the piano. A reading, "At the Movies," was given by Mrs. J. C. Denham. The next number on the program was a Spanish dance given by Miss Antonette Crimella and Miss Lillian Sturn.

The program was continued with a reading, entitled "One Legged Goose," by Miss Janet Shaw. Little Miss Charlotte Ryan gave an interpretation of "Turkey in the Straw" with Mrs. R. E. Ryan at the piano. J. J. Cosby sang a bass solo. A recitation, entitled "Dolly's Bazaar," was given by Miss Antonette Crimella. The program was concluded with a California dance given by the Misses Crimella and Sturn.

A picnic dinner was enjoyed at 11:45 a.m.

Dancing was provided at the exhibit hall at various hours during the day, music being furnished by Bill Maro's Orchestra. The baseball game between the married men and single men was called off because of an unsuitable diamond.

Athletic events consisting of dashes for boys and girls, men and women, and two novelty races were held on the race track in the afternoon. Prizes were awarded the winners and runners-up in each race as follows:

50-yard dash, (boys under 14)—First: Bernard Berens, Lancaster; second: John Pirrung, Lester Road, Cincinnati.

50-yard dash, (girls under 14)—First: Betty Cosby, Terrance Park,

MICHAEL'S MARRIAGE

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER LXXVI

Both felt much better the next morning, their weary nerves convalescent after twelve solid hours of sleep.

"Dear, don't go any place but the bank and then come right straight home," Lilah asked, over the breakfast table.

"Very well, dear,"

"And, Michael," she said, leaving her chair and sitting down on the arm of his. "Let's not have any guests for a while. I want only you for company. We'll just not announce our return officially for a few days. I don't think anybody will be offended."

"According to the wedding announcements we're supposed to be at home now."

"That doesn't matter. No one is going to try to break in until we let them know that we're back."

He devoted himself to the morning newspaper, glancing first at the headlines, then turning to the sport page.

"How do you like my toast?"

The paper came down.

"Oh! Did you make this toast?"

"I thought it tasted much better than usual." He helped himself to another slice, although there was already a half slice on his plate.

His eyes wandered back to the newspaper.

"I like the idea of preparing most of the breakfast at the table, don't you? I mean, I like a toaster, and a griddle and an electric coffee pot on the table."

"Michael, you're not listening to what I'm saying."

"Why, dear? I am!"

"Not that what I was saying was important, but I think you owe me the courtesy."

"Why, of course, dear! Please excuse me, if I seemed inattentive. I really was listening to what you were saying. I like griddle cakes, too."

She merely smiled slightly.

She forgot the incident after

Michael had gone, in her busyness. After changing from negligee into a beruffled organdy frock, she endeavored to "help" Sally Warbe by displaying a deep interest in the marketing details; then she toured the house completely, making mental notes on the arrangement of the furnishings, with an idea of changing them to suit herself.

She was determined that this should really be her house, and that she would impress upon it her own individuality. All of the pent-up emotions of years welled up in her. At last she was her own mistress, and could remove any picture that offended her aesthetic senses! She was thrilled by the fact.

She was in her own room, deciding how she wanted to rearrange it, when she heard Michael's voice downstairs. She flew to meet him. He stood waiting for her at the bottom of the stairs, his hands empty.

"Where is it, Michael? Didn't you bring it?"

"We'll have to wait a few more days, I guess. The chest is in the bank's vaults in Thurber's name, and they won't release it, of course, without his authorization. And he is out of town, trying a case. His partner says he may be away for several days."

"Darn it!"

They walked up the stairs arm in arm, with Lilah informing him how she proposed to rearrange certain of the rooms.

"Go right ahead, darling. You're the mistress and the hostess here.... Oh, say, dear! Lonnie Capper is coming out this evening."

Her chin dropped. "I thought we weren't going to have any company," she said.

"Why, dear! What's the matter. I didn't think you meant you didn't want Lonnie, too. Why, he's—"

He saw how useless it was for him to say more.
